ATLANTA BANKS
REFUSE TO LEND
$340,000 NEEDED

Advance Is Denied Because Board Already Has Expended All Money Due It for This Year.

TEACHERS ARE FACING DREARY XMAS SEASON

Mayor Sims Declares That Money for Payrolls Has Been Used by Board for Buildings.

Atlanta's public school system faced an acute situation Wednesday and its several hundred teachers a dreary Christmas, when it became known that during the morning four Atlanta banks had refused to loan the board of education the $340,000 necessary to meet the November and December payrolls of the school department.

Rejection of the loan applications was revealed by Ed H. Inman, chairman of the school committee of council, at a special meeting Wednesday afternoon of the joint committee recently authorized to discuss school finances for 1924.

"Heretofore," said Mr. Inman, "the banks have willingly advanced funds to the school department, but on those occasions the department was still due funds from the city with which it expected to repay the loan. The advance was refused this time because the school board has exhausted its portion of the city revenue and its allotment from the state for this year."

Share Already Expended. Reminded by Councilman Greer that there is still due the city a considerable sum in collectable taxes, Mr. Inman replied that the school board's share of the anticipated tax collections had already been drawn and expended. Mayor Sims asked Superintendent Sutton if the department has any funds on hand to meet the approaching payrolls.

"The books may show a balance from last month's payroll," he answered, "but the money on hand has already been designated for other purposes."

Mayor Sims told the committee that if the board of education had not used the payroll money for building purposes the schools would not be in their present predicament, but would be in position to operate until January 1, when next year's funds will be available.

Councilman Inman agreed with a member of the board that "the situation is deplorable," but, he said, "the school board did it when it took the payroll money and put it in brick and mortar."

Debate Suggested. W. W. Gaines, president of the school board, who was acting chairman of the special committee, stated that he believed he could advance a sound argument in support of the board's action in utilizing its money for building purposes.

"I suggest that we arrange a joint session of the two committees."

Mother and Tot
Hacked to Death
In Georgia Home

Savannah, Ga., November 21.—In a pool of blood with several cuts on the throat and everything about indicating a severe struggle, the body of Mrs. Agnes Mudge was found by her husband, a mechanic, who returned to his bungalow home on Laroche avenue, seven miles from Savannah, tonight.

Beside the body of the mother, with her toys strewn all about, was the body of the baby daughter, Doris, who had been struck dead by a blow from a hatchet.

Mr. Mudge and his 14-year-old son, Lester, left home this morning shortly after 6 o'clock for Savannah. They returned about 7 o'clock tonight and finding no lights burning in their home immediately made an investigation.

The body of Mrs. Mudge was found in the kitchen. Blood was spattered all about the room. By her body was a broken razor. The hatchet of the household was missing, and from the wounds on the woman's body it was evident that the slayer resorted to the hatchet when the razor was broken.

As soon as the alarm was given county police with trail hounds went to the scene. The coroner was called and it was found that both the mother and baby had been dead from six to eight hours. The trail hounds failed to pick up a scent and late to night the county police declared they had no resemblance of a clue to the slayer. Just behind the home is a dense swamp, and it is thought the killer, probably blood-spattered, made for it as a hiding place.

SIGNS OF STRUGGLE
SHOWN BY BLOOD.

Savannah, Ga., November 21.—(Special).—The coroner stated tonight that from the indications the slaying of Mrs. Mudge and the baby is undoubtedly work of a negro. County police also took this view. Evidently the struggle began in the kitchen, near the rear door where the slayer probably entered and seized the woman. Stains upon the door, upon the top of a small table, upon the refrigerator, and upon the walls show how the pair circled. Then the razor broke, and the killer finished his work with a hatchet, striking her twice, one blow penetrating the skull and causing instant death.

The child seemed to have only one injury, a heavy blow, apparently with the back side of the hatchet, or some other heavy weapon, crushing her skull and causing almost instant death.

METHODISTS PLAN

ENDOWMENT FUND

Campaign Will Be First Business To Be Considered by North Georgia Conference Today.

BY DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.
Bishop U. V. W. Darlington, presiding over the 57th annual session of the North Georgia Methodist conference at Wesley Memorial church, completely captivated the entire membership of the conference body in the opening hour Wednesday. Selecting a scripture passage peculiarly appropriate for the occasion and selecting suitable hymns, the bishop then delivered an address that clearly revealed his sympathetic attitude towards his fellow-laborers, and so developed his theme as to reach the hearts of every one present.

The opening hour of the conference session was marked by a degree of profound spirituality not often observed, and it appeared as though a revival meeting were in progress. Although Bishop Darlington has not at this conference before, the conference members now look upon him and feel toward him like a brother of old acquaintance.

Bishop Horace M. DuBois, of San Francisco, and Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of Washington City, were present at the opening session.

Urges Change of Trustees. One of the first items of business attended to was consideration of a resolution offered by Mr. M. M. Davies, representing the Wesley Memorial hospital board of trustees. The resolution proposed that the board of trustees of the hospital be dissolved and that its management be vested in the Emory university board of trustees. This resolution, which had already been approved by the university board and which will be submitted to the south Georgia conference for approval, was referred to the conference hospital board.

Mr. Davies also announced the gift of $17,000 to the hospital endowment fund by Mrs. Sarah A. Seitz, of the Inman Park church.

The chief item of business to be considered by the conference Thursday is the special effort for the superannuate endowment fund. At 10 o'clock the matter will be taken up, when Dr. Luther E. Todd, secretary of the general board of finance, of St. Louis, will outline the plan of the Southern Methodists raise within five years the sum of $10,000,000 for relief of the 2,300 conference claimants of the Methodist Episcopal church, south. Dr. W. A. Lambeth, of North Carolina, will follow with an inspirational address, urging the claims of the superannuates and the duty of the church at this time. Bishop Darlington will also speak to the subject.

The plan, as approved by the general conference and which is now being inaugurated in each annual conference, is to secure in subscriptions, payable within five years, a sum equivalent to the total amount as

Federal Officials Now See Way Clear To Wipe Out Use of Mails in Fraud Schemes.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Fort Worth, Texas, November 21.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, oil operator who was found guilty in federal court here this afternoon for the alleged misuse of the mails in connection with the operations of the Petroleum Producers' association, of which he was sole trustee, was sentenced to serve fourteen years and nine months in the federal prison and assessed a fine of $12,000 by Federal Judge Killits.

Fred K. Smith, treasurer of the company, was sentenced to serve seven years in prison and was fined $12,000. S. E. J. Cox was sentenced to serve eight years and fined $8,000. Other co-defendants of Cook who were found guilty were given the following:

Other Penalties.
A. K. Eckman, seven years and $12,000 fine; W. L. Bradish and W. P. Welty, two years each, and $1,000 fine; J. S. Rooks, C. W. Steele, S. L. Hess, T. O. Turner, B. S. Henniger, E. J. Bowen and R. L. Maxwell, each one year and a day and fines of $1,000. L. A. McKeecher was given six years and a fine of $1,000. O. L. Ray, G. A. deMontred, H. E. Robinson, Harry Blean and J. E. Burmeister, all of whom had previously entered pleas of guilty, were fined $500 each. H. O. Stephens, who also entered a plea of guilty, was fined $7,000 and sentenced to serve ninety days in jail.

Cook Gets Scorching.

In sentencing Dr. Cook, Judge Killits gave one of the most scathing denunciations ever heard in court here.

"Stand up, Cook," he commanded. "What have you to say for yourself?"

"So you have nothing to say?" replied the court. "You have come to the point where your peculiar personality fails you. The twentieth century should be proud of you. History gave us Ananias and Sapphira. They are forgotten, but we still have Dr. Cook."

"Cook, this deal of yours is so damnable rotten that it seems to me your attorneys must have been forced to hold their handkerchiefs to their noses to have represented you. It stinks to high Heaven. You should not be allowed to run at large. I know that you have your ill-gotten goods put away, but your wife and daughter should not be allowed to touch them. You have stolen money from widows and orphans. You should start another company and distribute it back to them."

Should Be Paraded. "Oh, God, Cook, have you no decency at all?" the court continued. "Are you not haunted at night by these pitiful figures? How can you sleep? I am not going to do justice in this case, for I think that you will get it somewhere else. You ought to be paraded as a practical warning in every state where you have sold stock, and that was the last stinging phrase of Judge Killits, and he passed sentence."

Dr. Cook, made an intentional character because of sheer effrontery, was conducting a school of crime and operating a cold blooded, deliberate confidence game, disguised as a

Woman Stripped to Waist
And Flogged With Strap

MRS. HOLCOMBE TELLS DRAMATIC STORY OF ATTACK

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Smyrna, Ga., November 21.—(Special).—Stripped to the waist by a band of masked men, who beat her and her companion without mercy, with a heavy leather strap, Mrs. Clayton C. Holcombe, 22, a pretty widow, Wednesday night told the story of the sensational flogging last Friday night to a Constitution reporter at her home in Smyrna, where she is staying with her parents.

Mrs. Holcombe still under the visible strain of the terrible ordeal through which she has passed, was somewhat reluctant in telling the story of Friday night, when she and her companion were taken to a lonely spot in the woods near Smyrna and beaten unmercifully.

"I do not like to talk about it," she said. "My father has the matter in hand. He knows what course to take against those men." Mrs. Holcombe declared.

Tears Hard to Check.

In talking to the reporter Mrs. Holcombe could hardly refrain from tears at the memory of the terrible experience of last Friday when she, as her worst enemy, returned from her job in Atlanta and was suddenly set upon by a gang of armed men.

This is Mrs. Holcombe's story: "I am a widow. My husband was killed two years ago last January in Atlanta on Magnolia street. He was employed by the W. & A. railway company as a switchman.

"I have known Mr. Norton for more than eight months, but it is only for seven months that he has taken me home from time to time.

"I am employed by the Bell Telephone company in Atlanta. Last Friday night Mr. Norton came and when my shift was ended took me to Smyrna in a Marietta street car. We alighted at Spring street, which is near the home of my parents, and walked one block to Spring street where we had to turn to the left.

Masked Men Appeared.

"Suddenly, without any warning six masked men dashed from behind a building and grabbed hold of Mr. Norton and me. They did not offer any explanation.

"They just grabbed us and shoved us in two automobiles which seemed to be waiting for them. Norton was placed in one car and I was put in the other.

"I think that we were driven for about twenty minutes, when one of the men called a halt and we were taken out. They started to beat my escort and he was crying and praying for mercy. But his assailants did not have any mercy. They just went whipping him with leather straps and

HOUSE EXPECTED TO VOTE TODAY
ON INCOME TAXES

Crucial Point Is Reached in Session Called by the Governor for Reforms in State System.

With every indication that the Georgia house of representatives will vote today on the question of whether or not an income tax for state purposes is to be levied in this state, the crucial point in the special session called by the governor to effect tax reform has been reached.

When the house adjourned shortly after 6 o'clock Wednesday night, debate on the Langford income tax measure, together with a number of substitute measures and amendments, had been in progress practically all day. During the day Speaker W. Cecil Neil, announcing that vote on the bills probably would be reached Thursday, made a personal appeal to all members of the house to make every effort to be in their places throughout the Thursday session. He pointed out that this question, in all probability, is the most important regarding the welfare of the state that will come before the legislature for many years and urged every member to do his duty to his constituents by recording his vote.

Bussey Measure First.

Under the parliamentary status, the first vote probably will be taken on the Bussey measure, providing for an income tax, for elimination of the state ad valorem tax on personal property, and for segregation of corporation franchises and real property for state purposes. This bill was the last substitute offered for the Langford measure, which has already passed the senate.

Then there is another substitute offered by Representative Rowe, of Richmond, providing for classification of property for state taxation. Representative Fowler, of Bibb, is author of another substitute measure, which would raise the state's revenue by means of a 1 per cent sales tax. Another substitute offered Standpat Quarrel With Two Factions of Progressives Presents New Possibility.

QUARREL MAY GIVE
GARRETT SPEAKERSHIP

G. O. P. Caucus Slated For Saturday Afternoon, While Democrats Meet At Night.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, November 21.—Once more the republican party seems about to be shaken by a fight between progressives and conservatives. The arduous which has prevailed since both wings joined behind Charles E. Hughes in 1916, is about to be ended. The progressive wing of the party is rising up to assert its right after having been in eclipse for nearly a decade.

The conservative control of the party is being challenged in three directions. Hiram Johnson is raising the issue in respect to the presidential nomination. Insurgents in the house of representatives are organizing to demand a greater voice in legislation and a larger part in the machinery which controls the law-making activities of the house. In the senate the La Follette bloc is preparing to reap the full fruits of the balance of power which it holds there.

War Is On Issues. The house fight is not one of personalities. There is no outstanding progressive leader. Issues, rather than men, are at stake. The progressives, elected on promises to enact certain measures, are now fighting to prevent the old guard from organizing a machine which will throttle their bills.

Conservative republicans assumed complete control when the Harding administration came in. They already had established themselves fairly well during the last two years of the Wilson administration. They held the important committee chairmanships and thus were able to suppress legislation which they did not favor and to advance bills which they sponsored. The victory which the progressives won in 1910 when they abolished the autocratic control of the speaker and placed it in the hands of the rules committee, had been nullified completely.

Progressives regard the defeat of many conservative republicans last November as justifying them in demanding a greater voice in the house.

Want Progressive Floor Leader.

They want a progressive floor leader instead of Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, who is the conservative choice.

They want more men on the key committees which will control the important legislation of the house during the next session. They want Woodruff, of Michigan, and one other progressive added to the ways and means committee, which will handle

News Outside the Door.

The red winged blackbird, breeding throughout the United States from Florida and Texas north to Manitoba and New Brunswick, often tarries until November when the seeds of certain weeds he is partial to are ripe. On his way to Virginia and southward for the winter he finds Mother Nature has spread banquets by the way. In stubble fields he gathers a little abandoned wheat, oats and corn, perhaps 13 per cent of his menu, but is quite content with seeds of smartweed, barnyard grass and ragweed, which make up 75 per cent of his food.

He finds the farmers' friendship by including 10 per cent of harmful insects in his daily rations, among them the obnoxious snout beetle, a weevil, many species of which are pests. The Florida redwing is smaller with habits resembling his larger brother.

Barnyard grass or cock's foot, weedy, is found in low rich fields and about cowhairs. Smartweed of the buckwheat family, includes water smartweed in wet soil and ponds, and tear-thumb with stems armed with sharp hooks.

BEATING IS TOLD
BY TWO VICTIMS

Seized Near Girl's Home And Taken to Spot in Woods Where Man Was Left, They Claim.

ALIBIS TO BE OFFERED
BY FOUR MEN ACCUSED

All Six Understood To Deny Charges; Jealousy Is Only Reason Advanced by Young Widow.

BY STEWART GELDERS.

Marietta, Ga., November 21.—(Special).—Charges of flogging a pretty young Smyrna widow and her escort were embodied in indictments for rioting and for assault and battery returned today by the Cobb county grand jury against Keller Hasty, pitcher for the Philadelphia American league baseball team who lives here, his two brothers, Frank and Arthur Hasty, Tom Black, employee of the Atlanta Gas works who lives in Smyrna, P. C. Cook, automobile mechanic who works in Marietta and lives in Atlanta, and Joe Bramlett, who lives near Smyrna. Four of the indicted men claimed alibis Wednesday night.

Mrs. Bertha Holcombe, 22, an employee of the Bell Telephone company at its Atlanta headquarters, and S. H. Norton, 25, traveling salesman who resides in Atlanta, brought the charges, alleging that they had been forcibly seized about 9 o'clock last Friday night while going to the girl's home from the Marietta car line, had been carried in two automobiles to a sequestered spot near Smyrna, and then flogged with a leather strap almost to the point of insensibility.

The only explanation made of the alleged flogging was the statement of the young woman to a Constitution reporter that "the village boys were jealous of the Atlanta man who called on her."

The indictments brought by the Cobb county grand jury, on the testimony of Mrs. Holcombe and Norton, were for rioting and for assault and battery. Each of the six was charged with the two offenses against each of the alleged victims. Each was released on $4,000 bond, $1,000 for each charge, within an hour after being arrested.

Claim Perfect Alibis.

Pieces of mistaken identity, supported by statements sworn to by a number of witnesses, will be submitted to a Cobb county superior court jury next week by at least four of the six men.

Keller Hasty, pitcher for the Philadelphia American league baseball team, who recently married Wilma Butler, daughter of R. E. Butler, wealthy Cobb county planter and business man, and Frank and Arthur Hasty, his brothers, will attempt to prove that they were in Marietta at the hour of the flogging near Smyrna, which is eight miles away.

Tom Black will submit testimony or affidavits from a score of employees that he was at work in the gas plant in Atlanta from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until 11 o'clock the night of the flogging. His handwriting on the record sheets, checking opera-

DIPLOMAS NOTE CONCEDES PRINCE PRIVATE CITIZEN

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Paris, November 21.—The allies, through their representatives in the ambassadors' council tonight, agreed to notify Germany that the inter-allied military control mission will resume its functions in the reich and that the Berlin government is bound to afford it facilities and protection.

They also decided upon a second communication in which they note the former crown prince's letter renouncing the throne of Prussia and voice expectations that the German government will see to it that Frederick William faithfully observes the promises made therein.

Under these conditions the allies will not insist upon laying hold of the prince, but they declare the German government must rigidly adhere to its assurance that the return of former Kaiser William to Germany will not be tolerated.

Foch Loosens Up.
This is the first time the allies have agreed upon a question relating to the execution by Germany of the treaty of Versailles since the partition of Upper Silesia was referred to the league of nations two years ago.

The usual sensation of leaving a meeting in full accord appeared particularly agreeable to the members of the council, who came out of the cloakroom of the foreign office radiant. Marshal Foch, who usually passes the line of reporters with military dignity, stopped to say the cheery word, "everything is all right."

Even Lord Crewe, the British ambassador, lost his accustomed gravity and chatted gaily with Jules Cambon, while Viscount Ishii, of Japan, Baron d'Hestroy, of Belgium, and Avezzano, of Italy, assured those outside that everything was for the best. Laurence H. Norton, secretary of the American embassy, who represented Ambassador Herrick, the latter being ill with the grippe, was particularly happy that the first occasion when he was called upon to represent the United States should be the occasion of patching up the entente.

Concessions Are Mutual.
The agreement was reached by mutual concessions on the part of France and Great Britain. The former withdrew from its stand that the notes should take the form of ultimatum and indicate to the German government the measures to be taken by the allies if the demands were not met. The British consented to a change in the wording to satisfy objections on the part of the French cabinet.

The spirit of give and take which resulted in saving the entente is regarded as the best augury for settlement of the other questions on which France and Britain are in dispute, though there appears to be some apprehension in French circles as to how parliament will receive the ambassadors' council.

In this connection significance was attached to today's debate in the foreign affairs committee of the chamber of deputies where Premier Poincare's policy toward Germany was censured as too mild, with General Viscount de Castelnau, former chief of staff, among the chief critics of the government.

Cambon Gains Prestige.
The salvation of the entente caused no little joy in official circles, however, and Jules Cambon, to whom a great share of the credit for the result is attributed, was the object of war, congratulations from his former colleagues of the foreign office and from the other members of the ambassadors' council.

Speculation as to the impression the notes will make in Berlin tends toward the belief that Chancellor Stresemann will find them as mild and conciliatory as it could be possible to expect. The general opinion among diplomats is that the German chancellor will find it advisable to do all he can to comply with the allied demands rather than risk another note harsher in tone and terms, though some believe that the great delay in reaching a decision will weaken its effect.

The clearing of the diplomatic atmosphere was so evident that the correspondents waiting in the cold dusk had to ask no questions to know that the entente had been saved.

POINCARÉ SENDS NOTES TO GERMANY.

Paris, November 21.—(By the Associated Press).—In accordance with the decision of the ambassadors' council, M. Poincaré, the president of that body, addressed two letters to the German chargé d'affaires here, von Hoesch, this evening. The first read:

"In the name of the allied governments represented at the conference of ambassadors I beg you to transmit the following note to the German government:

"The allied governments take note of the declaration made by the German government that it in no way intends to contest its obligations under the treaty of Versailles. They must, however, put on record that this government, nevertheless, in reality persists in invoking reasons for continuing to escape from the exercise of the military control in practice.

Operations Interrupted.
"The German government, it is true, does not put forward this time the pretence of French and Belgian officers in the operations of control as grounds for evading control, but maintained that resumption of the operations would be of a nature to aggravate its internal difficulties, and inevitably provoke incidents. The council must first observe to the German government that the operations of control have been interrupted many months, and there is no need to insist on the gravity of such a situation.

"The council can the less admit prolongation of the situation, as it might with reason ask itself whether the obstacles thus brought to the accomplishment of the task of the commission of military control have not favored the development of elements of trouble, and consequently contributed to increase the difficulties, of which the German government complains. The allied governments, moreover, cannot admit that the resumption of the operations of control should of itself be a fresh source of difficulties, or cause incidents.

To Continue Control.
"Not only are a great part of these operations carried out, owing to their very nature, under conditions which should not furnish a pretext for incidents, but the control commission, as the German government is aware, has always operated in the interests of proper accomplishment of its task in a manner to facilitate the work of the German authorities, and confidence in its tact in this respect can be continued.

"Under such conditions the Allied governments find themselves obliged to maintain the rights which belong to the military control committee and also to the committee of aeronautics guaranteeing to exercise fully operations of control, the commission of control and the committee of guarantee preserving moreover, full latitude of appreciation as to what constitutes operations, the execution of which seems to them really capable of realization and necessary.

Germany Is Bound.
"The allied governments recall to the German government that every time these organizations of control and supervision shall notify it, according to the regulations already established by agreement with the German authorities, that they intend to proceed on an inspection visit, the German government has the peremptory duty, in conformity with Article 206 of the Treaty of Versailles to give the inter-allied missions of control and their members every facility necessary for their task.

"Consequently the Allied governments have decided that the operation of military control and aeronautic supervision must be resumed without delay under conditions governed by the presidents of the commission of military control and the committee of aeronautics guaranteeing to exercise fully operations of control, the commission of control

Text of Second Note.

The text of the second note is as follows: The note from Herr von Hoesch, dated tenth of November, 1923, the German government informed the council in reply to a question put to it on November 9, that it had authorized the representative of Germany in Holland to deliver a passport to the former crown prince to reenter Germany. The Allied governments take note of this declaration.

The allied governments, on the other hand have received a letter, addressed November 18, 1923, by the charge d'affaires of Germany in Paris to the director of political affairs of the ministry of foreign affairs of the French council of ministers, a copy of which is annexed to the present letter.

Germany on Record.
"The allied governments take note of the declarations contained in this document, both concerning the renunciation by the former crown prince of his rights to the crown of Prussia and the imperial crown and concerning the formal engagement taken by the German government not to assist the former emperor's return to Germany. They formally recognize that the German government in communicating to the French government the text of its renunciation, signed first of December, 1918, by the crown prince, has gone on record thereby that it considers the renunciation valid and does not admit of its possible annulment.

"At the same time the allied governments note that the German government, which in order to escape its obligations under the treaty concerning military control, invokes the difficulties of the internal situation of Germany and the troubled state reigning there, has authorized, in full consciousness of its act, the return of the former crown prince, well aware that his presence in the territory of the reich is of a nature to provoke serious complications for Germany, from both internal and external viewpoints.

Hold Berlin Responsible.

"Under these conditions the allied powers find themselves constrained to declare to the German government that they hold it entirely responsible for the consequences which may result from the fact that it allows the former crown prince to remain in Germany. They feel they must draw the full attention of the German government to the danger which such a situation may involve, and which, in case it arises, may compel the allied powers jointly to devise measures suitable to meet it."

The text of Herr von Hoesch's letter to M. de Peretti, French director of political affairs, annexed to the foregoing, is as follows:

"As a sequel to my last conversation with you concerning the return of the former crown prince to Germany, I beg you to transmit the following note to the German government:

tion with you concerning the return of the former crown prince and rumors of the return of the former emperor, I requested my government as I expressed my intention to you, for supplementary information on the questions you asked me. I have just received reply from Berlin and hasten to inform you:

"Firstly, the crown prince, by a deed signed first of December, 1918, renounced his rights to the crown of Prussia and the imperial crown. The text of this document reads:

"By the present document I renounce expressly and definitely all rights to the crown of Prussia and return to Germany, which might belong to me either through renunciation by his majesty the emperor and king of the throne, or through any other title.

"Given under our hand at Wieringen, first, December, 1918.

"Second, the former emperor has not made any request to the government of the reich, nor expressed a desire, for authorization to return to Germany.

Thirdly, the German government formally confirms once more to me the declaration I made to you the day before yesterday, to the effect that it will not permit the former emperor's return to Germany, but will support the president of the council of ministers of the foregoing."

MIDDLE GEORGIA
FARMING PLANS ARE MAPPED OUT

Macon, Ga., November 21.—(Special).—The cow, hog and hen, together with the home orchard and the year-round garden will be stressed in middle Georgia during 1924, according to a decision reached at a meeting of agents representing the state college of agriculture in eleven counties in this section of the state here today. J. G. Oliver, state agent, presided over the meeting.

H. G. Wiley, agent for Butts county, told of a plan that already has been formulated to stress the program in his county. He said a survey already has been made to determine the needs of the territory and a program framed for distribution to farmers, showing just what to plant and how to cultivate it. Other agents discussed similar steps in their counties.

Those attending the meeting were B. O. Childs, Monroe; W. G. Middlebrooks, Bibb; H. G. Wiley, Butts; C. G. Neal, Lamar; D. S. McGee, Twiggs; W. H. Hoesch, Putnam; A. D. Hall, Pulaski; S. D. Truitt, Hancock; L. E. Swain, Baldwin; A. A. Almond, Jasper; H. A. Clift, Wilkinson.

J. Phil Campbell, of Athens, director of extension work in agriculture, was present but took no part in the meeting.

Money Is Recovered.

Rhine, Ga., November 21.—(Special).—After a chase through the country here Tuesday, $350 stolen from the Bank of Rhine, was recovered from a band of gypsies by S. J. Brown and several other men, from Rhine. The money was said to have been taken by a woman member of the gypsy band while Mr. Brown was changing a bill for another gypsy. No arrests were made.

Thanksgiving Turkey Dinner Will Cost $10.03 This Year

BY PARKS RUSK.

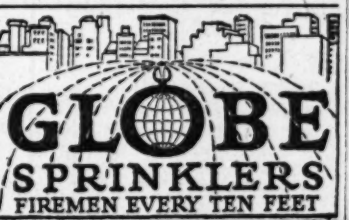

When the milkman came around last week and said the price of the scarcity of green grass in the fall of the year the price of milk would be raised three cents a quart it seems that he placed a first-class Thanksgiving dinner with turkey and all its accessories beyond reach of a $10 bill.

An Atlantan who had chosen from a cook book a menu which could be recommended to a family of five for Thanksgiving day, with a 10-pound turkey as a basis, had calculated that the meal would cost $10 to a penny, when along came that three-cent jump in milk and raised the cost to exactly $10.03.

That is not given as the cost of the average Thanksgiving dinner this year, for many families will feel exceedingly thankful over a little pig roast unadorned with yams and still others will not be so fortunate, but is given as the cost of a turkey dinner that would have justly graced the tables of our early New England settlers.

Many may be a bit partial to the menu presented herewith because it contains two kinds of pie, but it is given as the cost of a turkey dinner to invest $10.03 in a turkey dinner one week from today:

Roast turkey with dressing	5.00
Half of grapefruit	.25
Crackers	.10
Baked squash	.10
Apple pie	.10
Fruit	.10
Butter	.10
Three grapefruit	.25
One quart oysters	.25
One quart milk	.18
Crackers	.10
One 10-pound turkey	5.00
Potatoes	.15
Two pounds of squash	.20
One and one-half pounds cauliflower	.40

The Rising Sky-lines of Southern Cities Offer a Safe 7% Investment for Your Money

IN the business section of your city workmen start tearing down an old brick building. A little later the steam shovels are biting huge mouthfuls out of the earth. Soon the foundations are laid and the steel girders begin swinging into place. The air is filled with the terrific din of pneumatic riveters. Almost before you know it another modern structure rises to the sky-line of your city—and still the demand for business and living accommodations far outstrips the building program.

Long before a foot of dirt was excavated the cost of construction, total net earnings and operating expenses were definitely figured. Nothing has been left to chance. Men whose years of experience have gained for them an intimate knowledge of the trend of realty developments in Southern cities passed upon the site and type of building to be erected, appraised the property and fixed the rentals. The best architects designed the building; its construction was under the supervision of leading engineers. Every foot of space will have been leased long before the building is completed, thus insuring maximum earning power from the start.

Such property forms the basis of security for an issue of Adair Protected Bonds, which constitute a first mortgage upon the land, building and earnings from the property.

The rigid system of safeguards which protects investors in Adair Protected Bonds against loss, has been evolved from our experience covering a period of 58 years in this field, during which time no investor has ever lost a dollar through a first mortgage investment bearing our recommendation.

If your money is not earning as high as 7%, we suggest that you investigate Adair Protected Bonds without delay. Thousands of investors have found in these bonds a means to greatly increase their incomes without sacrificing one iota of safety.

He is said to have operated in hold daylight in Atlanta, Birmingham, several Florida cities, and a number of other places. Sidelights and Gossip Of Methodist Conference

BY DR. THOS. M. ELLIOTT.
Rev. James E. England, of Jonesboro, who joined the north Georgia conference at Cartersville in 1874 under Bishop Wightman, is one of the best loved men in the entire conference body. For 40 years he has given his time unreservedly to the work of the church, and never yet has he been known to hesitate when the call of duty came to him.

It was in 1859 that Rev. James T. Lowe, of Rome, joined the ranks of the Southern Methodist itinerants in the old Georgia conference. "Uncle Jimmie" is one of the three members of the conference today who came from the old Georgia conference membership. For 64 years his life has been occupied in service as a Methodist preacher. Today, aged and infirm, he is a superannuate, but his spirit is vigorous and his faith grows stronger and stronger.

The youngest old man in the North Georgia conference is Rev. William W. Brinsfield, who came to this conference in 1884 by transfer from another body. He has been superannuated twice, but he will not stay superannuated. He is as active today as any preacher in the conference, and is just as enthusiastic in his work. He is 75 years young, and going strong. For four years he has been agent for superannuates' homes, and has been instrumental in securing eight of the twelve homes in this conference. He is passionately devoted to his work, and few men can resist his appeal. Under his management there are now superannuates in the following towns: Atlanta, Grantville, College Park, East Point, Kirkwood, Lawrenceville, Jonesboro, Smyrna, Toccoa, Eatonton, Oxford and Haddock. There are prospects for homes in Lithonia, Acworth, Thomson and Young Harris. Brother Brinsfield is ever on the alert in behalf of the cause near to his heart, and he declares he will not rest contented until he has a home for every superannuate in this conference who is homeless.

Rev. Henry M. Quillian, pastor of the Lakewood Heights church of Atlanta, has the unusual record to his credit of receiving 100 new members into his church last year, and 100 this year.

Rev. W. O. McMullan, pastor of the Grant Park church, Atlanta, will report that his church of fewer than 400 members this year has contributed for all purposes the sum of $16,000. Brother McMullan says his people keep back just enough of their money to live on, and give the balance to God. That's the secret of their good work.

"I move that the secretary's report be adopted," said a brother Tuesday night at the meeting. Another brother sitting nearby cried out, "I second the motion!"

Tuesday night Dr. Steel said he would rather have peanuts in Dixie-land than pie in Yankee-land. The preachers applauded heartily. One wonders if that applause is indicative of the sentiment of this conference regarding the matter of unification.

A pastor who had served circuits and small town churches up to a year ago, at which time he was moved to an Atlanta church, remarked that he finds religious life here more vigorous than in small places. He says there are many more good people in Atlanta than had one, and further states that he finds a much higher degree of liberality. He thanks God for the influence of the Epworth league in his church over his son.

A large number of the conference preachers are staying at the Kimball House during conference. A great part of the members of the legislature is also stopping at the Kimball. Atlanta people are wondering what will be the outcome of confining divinity and politics in such close quarters. All so far is sweet peace and dulcet harmony. It's hard to tell which group has the best handshakers, the preachers or the politicians.

The Virginia conference is the only one larger than the North Georgia, in the southern connection. Virginia has 357 traveling preachers and 145,749 communicants, while North Georgia has 331 traveling preachers and 138,725 communicants.

"Preacher to build $50,000 residence at Druid Hills opposite the Druid Hills Golf club," said a headline in an Atlanta paper a few weeks ago. All Georgia wondered what preacher there could be who could build a $50,000 residence. Upon inquiry it was learned that G. Lloyd Preacher, one of Atlanta's eminent architects, is the preacher who will do the building.

The big matter before the Methodist conference today pertains to the annual effort for the superannuate endowment fund. The following facts will be interesting in this connection: In Southern Methodism there are 2,238 conference claimants, who last year received from the church $528,699, the men receiving $294 per capita, while the women received $198 each. In Southern Methodism 2,270 active preachers receive less than $1,000 each per year, while 1,669 active preachers receive between $1,000 and $1,500 per year. Of those who receive from $1,500 to $2,000 there are 1,163, while 625 receive between $2,000 and $2,500. The class receiving between $2,500 and $3,000 numbers 195. Just 332 active preachers receive between $3,000 and $4,000 per year.

The following facts will also be interesting: Last year, doctors, manufacturers, merchants, commercial travelers and preachers who receive more than $3,000 yearly are 1 in 5, 1 in 7.5, 1 in 10, 1 in 22.4 in 22 and 1 in 100, respectively. The same men receiving more than $5,000 per year rank 1 in 9, 1 in 12, 1 in 33, 1 in 50 and 1 in 240, respectively. It might be well to go back and read the above paragraph and this one again. Yes, Rev. E. F. Fraser, pastor of Wesley Memorial church and host to the conference for the fourth time in five years, has an excellent report to make at this conference. His church, with a membership of 1,200, has realized a net gain of 60 members this year, and has raised for all purposes the sum of $28,000.

Bishop Darlington Wednesday morning showed very conclusively that he can sing. He loves the old hymns, and his clear, strong voice can be distinguished among the multitude of voices.

Rev. S. A. Harris, Rev. H. S. Smith, Rev. Wallace Rogers and Rev. W. G. Cravley are new elders in the bishop's cabinet, and are having their first experiences as presiding elders at an annual conference session. During the sitting on Wednesday, they proved that they are not tendered by any means. Their reports showed them to be on the job, and that great things had been accomplished by them during the year.

The North Atlanta district, under Dr. W. H. LaPrade, Jr., and the south Atlanta district, under Dr. H. E. Eakes, appear to have been in a Ze-Vin Memorial kind of race this year in the matter of adding new converts to the church membership. Both of them reported having received 775 new converts into the church during their districts. Dr. LaPrade, like in Memoriam, will nose out in the lead, for at Ingleside a revival meeting is now in progress that will increase his total additions considerable. The Ingleside meeting was scheduled to close 10 days ago, but continues of its own initiative.

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., who has recently returned from Asia Minor, stirred the indignation of the conference Wednesday by telling of the horrible atrocities of the Turks against the Armenians during recent years. Bishop Cannon affirms that America will have to answer for some of the outrages committed and the destruction of Smyrna.

Bishop Horace M. DuBose, of San Francisco, stirred the conference with his glowing description of life and church opportunity in the far west. Such a beautiful picture did he present that it is feared that a hundred or more Georgia preachers will want to be migrating in that direction.

Dr. J. W. Quillian, presiding elder of the Augusta district, told of the difficult conditions in his district on account of crop conditions and business depression. He stated that some of his preachers have no money to buy their children winter shoes. But those same preachers are faithful and loyal to their charges and declare themselves ready and willing to carry on.

Lovick Pierce, of Sparta, was an interesting visitor at the conference Wednesday. For 35 years Mr. Pierce has been engaged in the government educational work and lived in Washington city. Last year he was retired. He is the grandson of Dr. Lovick Pierce, the son of the Bishop George F. Pierce, and is the cousin of Rev. A. M. Pierce, of Atlanta, and Rev. W. L. Pierce, of Augusta.

assessed this year for the support of pastors and presiding elders. This amount is the North Georgia conference will approximate $425,000.

In a statement to The Constitution Dr. Todd says that the 20 conferences he has visited so far have unanimously and heartily approved the proposition and assumed their various quotas. He states that this movement with ministers and laymen alike, judges that a minimum amount to be thus secured will provide the simple comforts for retired ministers of the church.

The North Georgia conference has never yet refused to accept its quota in any great undertaking of the denomination, and it is not expected to fail in this latest endeavor. Drs. Todd and Lambeth will receive a cordial reception and hearing here.

This conference has already shown its interest in the welfare of the superannuate, in that 12 homes for them have been provided, with others in prospect. Rev. W. W. Brinsfield, himself a superannuate, is agent for the homes, having his residence in Atlanta.

EFFECT ORGANIZATION.

The conference organization was effected Wednesday, when Rev. H. C. Emory, of Dalton, was again elected secretary, with Revs. G. W. Barrett, L. M. Twigg, W. S. Robinson, H. L. Byrd, Felton Williams, S. B. Strout, Elam F. Dempsey and C. P. Harris as assistants. Rev. H. I. Jones, of Jackson, was again elected statistical secretary, with Revs. G. H. Bailey, C. F. Hughes, R. F. Pim, Jr., W. J.

METHODISM'S FORGOTTEN MAN

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine. It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do. Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—(adv.)

Spence, J. W. Vesting, J. E. Cline and O. E. Swift, as assistants. Rev. R. F. Fraser, Dr. S. R. Bell and Rev. A. M. Pierce were elected a committee on public worship. The Sunday observance committee is as follows: T. P. Wooten, J. W. Hurt, E. W. Martin, L. F. Verderer, Mrs. Edna Tate, Mrs. Harry Jones, E. A. Starr, J. W. Stephens, Mrs. Albert Hill, H. I. Weaver, Miss Helen Williams and R. G. Smith. Rev. W. L. Pierce was elected a member of the committee on applicants to succeed Rev. Olin King, deceased. Rev. W. V. Carroll was elected a member of the four year committee to succeed Rev. Wallace Rogers.

5,622 Converts Reported.

According to reports made by presiding elders Wednesday, the Methodist churches of the North Georgia conference have this year received as members 5,622 new converts. Numbers by districts are as follows: Athens, 308; North Atlanta, 775; South Atlanta, 755; Augusta, 428; Dalton, 425; Gainesville, 483; Griffin, 300; LaGrange, 431; Marietta, 375; Oxford, 400; Rome, 450, and Elberton, 473.

Reporting for the Atlanta districts, Dr. E. E. Baker gave glowing reports of the progress of Methodist church work in this city. In the North Atlanta district Dr. LaPrade stated that many good revivals had been enjoyed with large net increases in membership, and that one new church had been organized at Brookhaven. He stated that new church building operations had been carried on at Decatur, Inman Park, Pattiolo Memorial, Druid Hills, Grace church and Centerville. All pastors, except two, have received salaries in full, and payments for benevolences have been larger than last year by $3,000. He stated that the district had raised $10,000 during the year.

Dr. E. E. Baker reported that six young men had been licensed to preach by his district, and that the spiritual life of the churches had been greatly increased during the year, with correspondingly large growth in the interest and work of Sunday schools. Benevolent collections are greatly in excess of last year, and all salaries of pastors have been paid in full, except in two or three churches. He reported a $20,000 new church building at Douglasville, and also other church structures in process.

Epworth League Reports.

Rev. G. F. Venable spoke of the enormous increase in Epworth leagues in the Athens district, the number increasing by 1,200 per cent in three years, and the membership increasing more than 5,000 per cent during the year. Dr. J. W. Quillian referred to the spirit of optimism possessing the Methodists of the Augusta district, despite the very adverse conditions in that district recently, due to crop failures and business depression. He stated that the benevolent collections show an increase of 10 per cent over last year.

Rev. H. S. Smith reported that 11 young men had received licenses to preach in his district and that benevolent collections are greatly increased. Rev. W. T. Hamby stated that the Gainesville district has seven new women's missionary societies and that a new church is being built at Clayton and also Tallulah Falls.

Dr. L. G. Johnson reported the growth of Sunday school interest by leaps and bounds, and that three new circuits had been formed in the Griffin district. He reported a new church at Jackson, and also a new parsonage there. Rev. Wallace Rogers, of the LaGrange district, reported progress in all lines, and referred particularly to the work of the Epworth League, of the Marietta district, reported five young men licensed to preach, two new churches dedicated, and that two training schools for Sunday school teachers had been held, with 100 certificates granted to them for courses of study.

Building in Progress.
Rev. W. G. Cravley, of the Oxford district, reported much building in progress in that district at Porterdale, Monticello, Gray, Haddock, Millerville and that Lithonia had cancelled an old $7,000 debt. As a new presiding elder Mr. Cravley stated that he had grown in grace during the year. Rev. W. T. Irvine, of the Rome district, reported some unusual revivals in that district, referring to one on the Rome circuit where the church membership was increased 100 per cent. He expressed great hopes for the future in the Rome district.

Bishops Cannon and DuBose made addresses to the conference on Wednesday. Bishop Cannon spoke of the atrocities perpetrated by the Turks in Asia Minor, while Bishop DuBose spoke of the growth and opportunity of Southern Methodism in the far west.

During the afternoon Dr. S. A. Settel preached a sermon on the theme, "The Christian Conception of the World: Redemption." At the evening service he spoke on "Francis Asbury, the Leader of the Circuit Riders." Dr. Steel will speak two times today. His theme for the evening will be "The Men Asbury Led."

WILL OF DR. FREEMAN SET ASIDE BY COURT

New Brunswick, N. J., November 21.—Justice Kirkpatrick today set aside the will of the late Dr. Charles M. Freeman, which left $110,000 to his chauffeur, Harry Mohring, and cut off his wife, Mary E. Wilkins Freeman, the author, with one dollar. The court held that Dr. Freeman had only known his chauffeur six months when he made the will; that he was an alcoholic and suffered from a diseased mind; and that he was of insufficient mental capacity justly to dispose of his estate.

How to get $1,806 interest from a $1,000 bond

One thousand dollars invested in a fifteen-year Miller First Mortgage Bond, paying 7%, will bring you a total of $1,050 in interest—$35 in cash every six months, to be used as you please.

If, instead of spending the interest money, you use it to buy additional Miller 7% Bonds, thereby compounding your money, you will receive in a lump sum in the fifteenth year a total of $1,806 interest. Your original $1,000 will thus have amounted to $2,806.

The $1,806 earned in 15 years at 7% compound interest represents an average of more than 12% per year on your $1,000 investment.

These remarkable returns are made possible to the investor because most of our issues are secured by income-producing structures in Southern cities, where 7% is the prevailing rate. Miller Bonds secured by New York City property, and precisely similar to our Southern issues, pay 6½%. To anyone who would like further information about these securities which have never caused a loss to any investor, we will gladly present a booklet of facts about Miller Bonds. Call, write or telephone "Creating Good Investments."

"This method of investing is based on the plan of adding to your 'odd amounts' of interest, as received, sufficient money to buy an additional $100, $500 or $1,000 Miller 7% Bond. These extra sums, which are not included in the figures shown below, actually increase the amount you get back at the end of 15 years. The way your original $1,000 grows is shown by the following table:

Years	Amount	Years	Amount
1	$1,071	6	$1,511
2	1,147	7	1,618
3	1,229	8	1,734
4	1,316	10	1,989
5	1,410	15	2,806

To get all your money back at the same time, you would reinvest your interest in bonds maturing in the fifteenth year.

Right To Operate Arlington Court Is Upheld in Test

Arlington, Ga., November 21.—(Special).—That the court of appeals has ruled that the case of the state vs. Otis Jackson was legally tried when tried in the city court of Arlington, Ga., was the information received here today.

This was a test case which was appealed by Attorney A. L. Miller, of Edison, Ga., to decide whether Otis Jackson, negro, who was charged with a misdemeanor and tried in the city court of that county, at the first session of that court since the general assembly named Arlington as the county site of Cobb county, was legally tried. Col. Miller contended that the court should be named the city court of Morgan, as it was before the county site was moved, until a suitable place had been provided in Arlington for holding the court. City Court Solicitor J. M. Cowart argued that the court should be called the city court of Arlington and he held in Morgan, until a place had been provided in Arlington for holding the court.

A suitable place has not been provided for holding court in Arlington, because the county commissioners were enjoined from moving the county books and records from Morgan to Arlington by the opponents of the county site removal bill. The point raised by the petitioners was that the county site removal election, which Arlington won by a small vote, was held in February, 1922. It should have been held in the legislature, and since it failed to be ratified by that assembly, the bill could not be brought over and legispassed by the 1923 general assembly. In the hearing held by Superior Court Judge W. B. Duckworth, the case was legal. As the case was legal, it was not held until November 19, it will be some time in the opinion of the local attorneys, before it will be known whether Arlington is the county site or not.

SAVANNAH PROBE OF RUM RUNNERS

led mainly to New York, Philadelphia, the Chesapeake capes and Charleston, S. C., but between these points and into the interior as far as Pittsburg, the chain of evidence has been found to be unbroken and the operatives who have been delving into the conspiracies feel that they soon can uncover "some widely known persons who hitherto have been able to keep in the background."

The department declined to hint at the identity of any of the persons indicted at Savannah, but the statement was made that these indictments could be considered as important from the standpoint of those about whom the government agents are striving to tighten their net.

Methods Exposed. Officials explained that the evidence involving rum runners and smugglers involved some foreigners resident in the United States. These largely were English and Canadians, it was added, but the testimony obtained at Savannah provided the government with the facts as to methods employed by all rum runners in getting the contraband ashore. In this respect, it was stated, the information has been highly important to the prohibition enforcement corps.

William J. Burns, chief of the department of investigation, said that the government was prepared to continue "at bat" and that the entering wedge of the clean-up program had been successful. Working under direction of Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, Burns laid out a winter's work in stamping out illicit liquor dealing. He asserted that the plans should be sufficient to convince any one of the government's intention to enforce the dry law.

EIGHT FACE TRIAL ON LIQUOR COURT

Savannah, Ga., November 21.—(Special).—Eight Savannah men, prominent in federal court records, went on trial today in federal court, Judge W. H. Barrett, charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law. They are Frederick Haar, Sr., Fred Haar, Jr., William Haar, Carl Haar, John Harris, Charles Barbour, Buck Walker and Charles Mell.

The cases grew out of sensational raids and indictments some months ago when former Police Chief Wood assisted the federal agents. The battle waged stubbornly in court all day, with leading lawyers on both sides lined up on opposing sides. Numbers of witnesses were examined today and secret service men guarded the courtroom and kept watch over the proceedings.

More Indictments. More indictments followed today in the grand jury's names are not given out until arrests are made—and it is said that indicted persons alleged to have been connected with the buying and selling, transporting and possessing liquor in Savannah to New York and other eastern points are scattered all over the eastern section of the United States.

It is said that over 100 indictments have been returned and that a thorough probe may reveal immense traffic in the past six months. Georgia coast points of entry and eastern cities—by rail and boat and automobile methods of shipment. Shipments were made under guise of various kinds of merchandise, it is claimed. C. L. Redding, assistant district attorney, said to press today that the indictments reach into all parts of the country, north, south, east and west. They involve charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, shipping, transporting, possessing and importing of liquors. Names of those indicted are not available for publication at this time because of the fact that arrests are to be made in various sections under the indictments.

Great Coup Claimed. It is understood from the government attorney that out-of-town defendants are named in indictments in which Savannah people appear and for this reason "none of the indictments are available for publication." The action of the grand jury classified in official circles as one of the greatest coups in prohibition law enforcement in the eastern section of the country.

Reports from Washington today say that the indictments came as the result of activities of department of justice agents acting from Washington. None of the details are known locally, but it is understood the investigation covers coastwise shipments and other big liquor activities.

The government is represented by White Miller, special assistant to the attorney general of the United States; Charles Redding and Charles B. Donnelly, the two local assistant attorneys. F. G. Boatwright, of Cordele, the district attorney, was in the court, sitting immediately behind the group of government representatives, but he took no part in the prosecution.

The defense was handled by A. A. Lawrence, John J. Bouhan and Judge John E. Schwarz, of Savannah, and John W. Bennett, of Waycross.

WOMAN STRIPPED TO WAIST, FLOGGED

with sticks, and some even kicked him."

"What did they do to you?" she was asked.

Tore Waist Off. "They tore my dress down to the waist and gave me a licking. They beat me about the body until it seemed that I would lose consciousness, but I stayed firm to the end. All the time while those men were doing the whipping they cursed me and Mr. Norton and from what I heard them say in those terrible moments I gathered enough to tell my father who the men were who had attacked me," she said.

"What did they say?" she was asked. "They told Norton to stay away from Smyrna and never come back there, and they told me to keep away from Norton," she replied.

"Did you say anything in return?" she was asked.

"No, I was frightened out of my senses, I could not say anything."

Tossed Out of Car. Mrs. Holcombe then recounted how she was taken back to Smyrna from the lonely spot in the woods and thrown out of the car near the home of her parents on Bank street. She said that her companion of the evening had not been taken back. He had been turned loose alone, a severe beating and kicking in the place where the beating took place. According to Mrs. Holcombe, they told Norton, after administering a few more kicks, for him to go to Marietta and never return to Smyrna.

Mrs. Holcombe said that she only recognized three of the voices of the masked men who attacked her and her companion. She named Tom Black, Parks Cook, and Joe Brummett. All three are Smyrna boys, according to Mrs. Holcombe. In answer to questions she stated that she never had received attention from any of these men and that she had actually never spoken to them in any more than a casual manner on the street.

When asked to what she attributed the outrage, Mrs. Holcombe declared that she thought that jealousy was the motive. "Those village boys could not stand the idea that Mr. Norton was seeing me home nearly every night."

"Had they any reason to suspect that your relations with Mr. Norton had progressed beyond the usual stage of good friendship?" she was asked. "None whatever," she replied. "We were just good friends. He came often to take me home after I was finished working, that is all there is to the affair," she said.

Informers Pinkertons. Mrs. Holcombe's father said that he was the first to inform the Pinkerton detective agency of the flogging and that they subsequently turned over the case to the sheriff of Cobb county. He declared further that he would push the case to the full extent of the law and that he would not rest until every detail of the beating was brought to light.

"I have not much to say tonight, but I will say something after the officers of justice have rounded up every culprit connected with the case. We know every one of them. My daughter knows them and I know why this shameful and terrible thing was committed. And I tell you that I will not rest until every man who took part in it has been brought to justice."

unless it is jealousy," she added quickly. Mrs. Holcombe is a pretty young brunette of 22. She has her eyebrows daintily penciled according to the latest Parisian fashion and wears her gowns with a chic and nonchalant ease that would do honor to the ladies of the boulevards and on Fifth avenue. She tells her story in a straightforward manner, did not seem to be looking for any undue publicity and asked that her name be withheld in connection with the affair.

"It will not be very long until the truth will be known about this matter," she said.

"After they threw Mr. Norton on the ground, after they had beaten him almost into insensibility, he went to Marietta. He came back at 4 o'clock the next morning, that was Saturday, and he came to see how I was. He had not slept and was a terrible sight. His eyes were swollen and his face was covered with blood. He told me that they had taken all his money from him before letting him go and he told me also that he was suffering from pains from his wounds in the face and from the bruises on his body. Mrs. Holcombe declared that she had not seen Norton since last Saturday morning.

tions at the plant every five minutes during the night, also will be submitted.

P. C. Cook, mechanic who works in Atlanta, declined to discuss the indictment at all Wednesday afternoon, following his release on bond from Cobb county jail.

"I will talk when the case comes to trial and not before," he told a Constitution reporter.

Joe Brummett, the sixth man indicted, left for his home near Smyrna immediately after his release under bond and could not be reached for a statement.

Charges by Norton that he had been robbed were not embodied in the indictments returned Wednesday but it was reported generally around the Cobb county court house that the grand jury might take up the case again Thursday to consider additional indictments on charges of assault with intent to rob.

Creates Sensation. The indictments Wednesday were the first intimation to people of the section that a flogging had occurred five days before and created a sensation both in Marietta, county seat of Cobb county, and Smyrna, a small town in Cobb county between Atlanta and Marietta.

Solicitor General John S. Wood, of the Blue Ridge circuit, and Tom Sanders, chief deputy sheriff of Cobb county, who assisted Sheriff Swanson in making the arrests, both were reluctant in the extreme when questioned on the case.

The Hasty family is a well-to-do and prominent one in Cobb county. The Butler family, into which Keller Hasty married last spring when his baseball team was playing an exhibition game in Atlanta, is one of the wealthiest in that section of the state. Keller Hasty and his wife are residing with the Butlers during the winter season and he discussed the indictments at the Butler home with a Constitution reporter.

Hasty Denies Flogging. "Neither I knew nor my brothers knew anything of this affair until this afternoon when we heard the sheriff was looking for us," Hasty declared. "We had absolutely nothing to do with it and I am sorry that our names have been dragged into the case."

"I don't know this young woman, would not recognize her if I saw her, and do not recall ever having heard her name," he continued, "and my brothers tell me that they are not acquainted with her."

"We can all account for our whereabouts during the entire afternoon and night of November 16," he declared. "I was here with my wife and her father from early in the afternoon until Saturday morning. My brothers spent the entire evening with a crowd of other young people at the motion picture show in Marietta and the people they were with can prove they had no chance to go to Smyrna to do this whipping."

Hasty said that he was not prepared to give the names of the other people with whom his brothers spent the evening, indicating that he did not want them brought into the case until it goes to trial.

W. D. Richards, who resides at the Hasty home near Smyrna, said that his wife, who formerly was Miss Annie Hasty, was with her two brothers and others at the Marietta motion picture theater all Friday evening.

Officers Are Silent. Courtroom officials, including sheriff's deputies, declined to say whether any more arrests are to be made in the floggings or whether indictments are to be asked for any other persons than the first six men now under bond.

An attitude of secrecy was maintained in regard to the whole affair and especially in regard to the cases to be made out against the six indicted men.

Otis Brumby, editor of The Cobb County Times, told reporters that the consensus of opinion in Marietta was that some mistake had been made in implicating the Hasty brothers in the floggings.

S. J. McGee, foreman of the department of the Atlanta gas works in which Tom Black is employed, stated that he and a score of other gas works employees had worked with Black during the night of the floggings. He had been connected with the plant for four years, the foreman said, prior to which time he was in the line department of the Georgia Railway and Power company. His record has been excellent, Mr. McGee said. Black worked as usual Wednesday night after having arranged his $4,000 bond in Marietta.

Plan Early Trial. Solicitor John Wood, of the Cobb superior court, stated Wednesday night that he was undecided as to when the cases will be called, but he was of the opinion that they would come to trial either on Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday of next week when Cobb criminal court will be in session.

COOK ARRESTED IN ATLANTA. P. C. Cook, 40, a garage mechanic, was arrested in Atlanta Wednesday afternoon at a local garage in connection with the flogging of Mrs. Holcomb and Norton. Detectives Whitely and Smith made the arrest. Cook was carried to police headquarters, and after being subjected to a short grilling in the office of Chief of Police Beavers, was turned over to Sheriff Swanson, of Cobb county. Mrs. Holcomb came to the police station and dramatically identified Cook as one of the six men who flogged her and Norton.

"I struggled with you and pulled off your mask," she cried pointing to him, "and recognized you."

Mrs. Holcomb also said that Cook had on several occasions asked her to go riding with him, and to come to Atlanta with him, but that she had declined.

Philadelphia, November 21.—Manager Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia American League baseball club, expressed surprise tonight at the report that "Bob" Hasty, one of his star pitchers, was among the men indicted at Marietta, Ga., in connection with the flogging of a man and woman near that city. Mack said he could scarcely credit the report, for, he added, "Hasty is one of the finest, quietest and most gentlemanly chaps I ever met."

Hasty has been with the Athletics three years and last season was one of their leading pitchers. His home is at Cannon, Ga., about thirty miles from Atlanta. He was married last spring to a Georgia girl.

Firm, Plump
Flesh!

MANY are the eyes that are turned to gaze with keen admiration on the well developed, healthy girl no matter where she may be—on the rapidly moving thoroughfare or gliding gracefully over the dance floor.

All eyes turn because we all appreciate the girl with the figure so firm and plump—the girl with the radiantly red cheeks, cheeks that carry a touch of roses from nature's own garden—the girl with the sparkling eyes, keen and sharp—the girl with buoyancy and the swing of youth.

Not necessarily an out-of-doors girl. Just a girl with ever increasing blood cells. Just a girl filled with the vim and vigor of youth.

S. S. S., since 1826, has stood for increased blood cells. S. S. S. means restored strength—rekindled vitality—added energy. Take S. S. S. and watch the bloom of youth return to your cheeks. Watch that flabby, ill nourished flesh fade away before flesh that is firm and plump. Red blood cells will do it and S. S. S. will build them. It contains only pure vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size bottle is more economical.

One of the features of the entertainment will include the Elks' Troubadours, under the direction of Signor E. Volpi, who have been seen in many of their public appearances at the Howard theater, at church benefits, school entertainments and concerts of various sorts in Atlanta.

Second 'Betty Ann' Doll Won by Atlanta Girl IMMEDIATE ENTRY IN DOLL GAME URGED AS CHRISTMAS NEARS In One Day's Time; Entries Are Numerous

Left, Virginia Tatum, 12-year-old girl of 170 Mills street, Atlanta, who won the second "Betty Ann" doll in The Constitution's great Christmas free toy offer. Only one day was required to win, she stated. At right is Eunice Duke, 12, of 74 Venable street, a playmate of Virginia, who came with her and asked to enter the "Betty Ann" game. She is out to equal Virginia's record. The two little girls were among the scores of people who Wednesday came to The Constitution to either enter the "Betty Ann" game or to be presented their dolls.

And still they come—the loyal little subjects of "Betty Ann, queen of toyland."

Wednesday witnessed the awarding of a number of additional "Betty Ann" awards in The Constitution's great free Christmas toy offer, and the day also brought numerous entries in the game.

The second little girl to win a "Betty Ann" doll was 12-year-old Virginia Tatum, of 170 Mills street, Atlanta, who was formally presented with her beautiful prize in the office of the "Betty Ann" department of The Constitution.

Virginia equalled the record of Nancy Raines, 5-year-old Atlanta child, who was the first to win a "Betty Ann." Like Nancy, Virginia completed her book of new subscriptions in one day's time.

Was Easy Matter.

"I'm just wild over my 'Betty Ann,'" she told Constitution officials. "I wanted her so badly that I didn't stop a single minute until I had completed my blank book. It was just as easy as could be, as is shown by the fact that it took only one day to win my Christmas doll."

When she came to The Constitution, Virginia brought with her Eunice Duke, 12 years old, of 74 Venable street.

"I told Eunice about the 'Betty Ann' offer," she explained, "and she wants a book. She can win one just as easily as I did."

And Eunice took her book and promised to be back "right away" to claim her doll.

The near approach of Christmas is the reason for the popularity of the game.

The first, introduced by Representative McCrory, of Schley, but known as the Ballard bill, on account of the fact that it was drawn by Superintendent N. H. Ballard, of the state department of education, provides that each county board of education shall carry on hand a supply of books, approved under the provisions of the Koenigs act by the state board of education, and that it may either sell these books to the children at wholesale cost, or rent them at a rental price not to exceed fifty per cent of the wholesale cost, or furnish them free in its discretion. The vote recommending this bill back to the house with the notation that it do pass, was eleven to eight.

The other bill, introduced by Representative Stanford, of Lowndes, appropriates the sum of $20,000 from state funds for the purpose of matching, on a fifty-fifty basis, funds raised by any school unit in the state, for furnishing free text books to the pupils in the first grade. The vote on this was ten to six.

Action on a senate resolution continuing the law under which school books are contracted for, for an additional two years, was postponed to a later meeting in order to allow Superintendent Ballard to be present to explain results of the resolution, if passed.

Elgin Wrist Watches, made in Gold, Platinum, Jewel-set, and Gold-filled may be had from your jeweler at a wide range of prices.

The watch of authority for women

Forty-seven years ago, at the Centennial Exhibition in Philadelphia, the people of the United States found their first opportunity to compare the products of their home manufacturers with those from overseas.

Watch-making was a comparatively new art in America, but nevertheless Elgin Watches were exhibited alongside the time-keeping masterpieces of England, France and Switzerland.

Elgin Watches were admired, but nobody then would have dared the prediction that time authority would move away from Europe and re-locate itself in the little city of Elgin, Illinois.

This means more to women even than men.

For the woman's watch is smaller and the demand for delicate precision greater.

Women have turned to Elgin for the practical watch and many would not be tempted with the most beautiful case in the world if it did not contain an Elgin movement.

Probably no watch today is so well spoken of by woman's word as the Elgin—the advice of one woman to another spreading all over the country and even abroad.

Elgin Time is broadcasted three times daily, at 12 noon, 6 p. m. and 12 Midnight Central Standard Time, from the Elgin Time Observatory through Station W/DAP—the Drake Hotel, Chicago.

STATE GAME WARDENS ARE ENFORCING LAWS

Reports over the state indicate that local wardens as well as state game officials are determined to enforce the game laws. Game is still plentiful in most sections, according to Commissioner Twitty, and it is the desire of every real hunter that the laws be enforced.

The courts are prosecuting violators of migratory bird laws and in some cases heavy fines are being given offenders. Some confusion seemed to have been caused due to the fact that the state law permitted the shooting of doves at a time that the national law prohibited it. The state law in that case gives way to the national law and the men who shot the doves out of season are paying for it.

The most important game birds in the state are quail, doves, ducks (migratory) and snipe as well as many other shore and coastal birds. There are some pheasants in the northern part of the state but they were introduced recently and as yet are not considered game birds for shooting, being protected.

Habits and squirrels abound in swamps and wooded sections and in large river swamps of south Georgia some deer are still to be found. A few deer are found in the mountains of the northern part of the state, according to reports, but not numerous.

The small brown bear is also found in the swamp lands of the state. There is a big limit on practicality every kind of game and the wardens are instructed to watch for violators of this as well as for the shooting out of season and without license. State game license costs $3 and a county license $1. No license is required for hunting in your own district in the county in which you live.

SUICIDE IDENTIFIED AS LOT B. CRESSY

The body found in the woods near the Confederate home Tuesday, by W. B. Hopkins, city fireman, was identified Wednesday morning at a meeting of the coroner's jury, as that of Lot B. Cressy, a Swede of Jersey City, N. J. The jury, headed by Paul Donebo, declared that the man had ended his life by drinking carbolic acid.

Cressy's body was discovered by Fireman Hopkins as he was walking through the wooded spot near the Soldiers' home. At the man's feet lay an empty two-ounce bottle of carbolic acid. Identification was made by C. B. Gleason, a truck farmer, who lives on Confederate avenue. He stated that Cressy had worked for him a number of years.

Cressy was apparently about 40 years old. No arrangements for the funeral have been made.

Record Audiences Assured For 'Kirmess' Performances

A heavy advance sale of seats for the three performances of the kirmess at the city Auditorium Friday and Saturday resulted in a request Wednesday by the Atlanta Woman's club that persons who have purchased tickets from members of the club have them reserved promptly before the supply of choice seats has been exhausted. The tickets sold by the club women must be exchanged at the Cable Piano company for reserved seat coupons. It was explained; and taken, the sponsors of the production issued the statement for the purpose of clearing up any misunderstanding. Indications are that large audiences will see all three productions of the extravaganza of music, dancing and comedy with the selected cast of entertainers which will make its bow to Atlanta Friday night. An especially brilliant spectacle is expected at the premiere which will be a social event that promises to crowd the Auditorium with an audience rivaling those which attend grand operas.

All groups taking part will meet at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night in the city Auditorium for the first general rehearsal. Rehearsals have been held daily in the Auditorium of the Woman's club for the past three weeks and fine progress has been made. Those who have been privileged to witness these practices declare that the kirmess will be one of the most brilliant social and theatrical undertakings ever attempted here. The attraction is being directed by "Gene" Trader, a former Atlanta boy, who was associated with F. M. Agostini in its production many years before his death in 1917, and is assisted in the work by George D. Morrison, of St. Petersburg, Fla. Some of the most prominent women in the city are giving their time and their efforts to the staging of the kirmess and its success is assured.

One of the chief attractions of the show is said to be the scene depicting "Peter Pan's" Court, featuring more than 100 dainty little maids in graceful ballets, exquisite dances and musical choruses.

Tech Boys To Do Research Work For Gotham Firm

A research arrangement has been reached between the Georgia Tech school of commerce and a New York advertising agency, according to J. H. Watters, dean of the commercial department.

The seniors of the merchandising and advertising classes have been assigned to the job of making a survey of consumer demand for glinchams and mattresses. These facts are to be used by clients of the company in preparing its production schedules for 1924, as well as in working on advertising and merchandising plans.

The school of commerce at Tech was selected for this work by Dr. E. E. Pratt, head of the research department of the New York firm and formerly chief of the division of foreign and domestic commerce in the U. S. department of commerce under President Wilson, because of the national reputation of the school of commerce for work in advertising and merchandising, it was stated.

"It is not possible to praise too highly the accuracy and spirit with which the Tech seniors made their inquiries," said S. Johnson, who represented Dr. Pratt in initiating the research. "We shall depend on the school of commerce students to keep us in touch with trade and consumer conditions in the southeast. We find that facts gathered in this way are the most usable because students are working under faculty supervision, are more keenly alive to the importance of careful work."

Mistah Speakah—
Move to amend—

Any and all income tax proposals which provide for crediting of ad valorem taxes against income tax payments.

Let us suppose a case. A case which is true in actual life in thousands of Georgia homes.

There is a hardworking man, earning a weekly pay envelope. He has a hardworking and faithful wife, with two or three children, finest and prettiest and smartest children in the world, in the opinion of proud mother and father.

This little family is living on that weekly pay envelope. But they are ambitious to provide for the future, to build a nest of their own, which will always extend its shelter and its welcome—a home that no man can take from them. They dream of the day when they no longer must pay out forty per cent of that weekly pay to a landlord for the privilege of a place to lay their heads. So, heeding the advice of every advisor, they begin the purchase of a home.

It is not an extravagant home, just a little cottage, simple and inexpensive, but all the world to the little family. It costs, let us say, four thousand dollars. They pay five hundred, in hard earned, hard-earned money. The rest is in monthly notes that they take up like rent, with interest added each month. Then, because the father is honest, because he wants to do what is right, because his first thought is to care for the wife he loves and the children he worships, he has the home put in his wife's name. Then, he thinks, no matter what happens to him, that marvelous wife of his always will have a home of her own.

Now see what the great state of Georgia does to him.

It says you must pay income tax on everything you earn, above the set exemptions, regardless of the fact that part of that income is going into a home, on which, of course, you will have to pay ad valorem at full value, despite the fact that your equity in that home is not very large. Immediately, there, it double-taxes the man.

Next, it collects the ad valorem on the home, at, as noted above, its full valuation, irrespective of the size of the man's equity. But still we are mistaken, it is his wife that pays the ad valorem on full valuation despite the size of her equity. But, be it noted, it is the money her husband earned that is paying for that home and that likewise pays the ad valorem tax, despite the fact that the same money has already paid income tax.

But this is not all. The home is in the wife's name, the taxes are paid in the wife's name, so the husband cannot deduct the amount of the state ad valorem tax on this property from his income tax. Thus we get triple taxation, just because he was man enough to give to his wife the home in which she lives, and which he is proud to earn for her. While his neighbors, no fears his present wife may later be his divorced wife, with another lady bearing his, keeps his home in his own name and so no deduction of deduction of ad valorem from his income tax.

Gentlemen, it isn't fair.

Mistah Speakah—I propose an amendment to allow deduction of ad valorem taxes on residence property when it is occupied by the tax payer, when the home is in either the husband's or the wife's name.

tax revision. They want Ramseyer, of Iowa, and one more on the interstate and foreign commerce committee which will deal with railroad legislation, they seek two new members on the judiciary committee to offset the wet influence. Ingram, of Pennsylvania, is slated for the chairmanship and the next in seniority is Dyer, of Missouri. Both are wet.

Most of all, the progressives want at least two men on the all-powerful rules committee, which determines the schedule of legislation in the house.

DEMOCRAT MAY BE SPOILER

The insurgents, however, are divided into two camps the moderate progressives are boosting Graham, of Illinois, for floor leader. The LaFollette backing is going to the extreme. He has no chance of being elected, but the movement is being used as a club to force concessions from the conservatives. By voting for Cooper for floor leader, the dozen or so LaFollette men theoretically could allow the democratic candidate—Finley J. Garrett, of Tennessee—to get more votes for leader than Longworth. They also could apply this strategy to the election of speaker with the effect of putting in a democrat.

HOUSE DEMOCRATS TO CAUCUS SATURDAY

Washington, November 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—A call was issued today for a caucus of democratic members of the house Saturday night, December 1. House republicans will hold a conference that afternoon—two days before congress convenes—for organization purposes.

The democratic caucus call went out after Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, who acted as minority leader in the last congress, had conferred with Representative Oldfield, of Arkansas, who was democratic whip. Representative Kayburn, of Texas, who served as chairman of the democratic caucus and other party leaders.

Those who participated in the conference expressed the opinion that the democrats in the next house should have greater representation on important committees—nine places on committees having a membership of 21, and eleven on the ways and means committee, which has 25 members.

Name Garrett for speaker. In the last congress when the republican majority in the house approximated 170, the ratio was fifteen and six on committees generally, and seventeen and eight on the ways and means committee. The proportion in the forthcoming congress will be determined by the republican committee on committees.

At the democratic caucus a candidate for speaker will be selected, and probably the minority members of the ways and means committee, who in turn will assign their democratic colleagues to various committees. Democratic leaders generally predict that Mr. Garrett will be put forward for speaker, automatically becoming leader of the party on the election of a republican speaker. Plans are being made to name Representative Henry T. Rainier, of Illinois, as chairman of the democratic caucus, and to return him again to the ways and means committee, where he served for many years.

A. M. E. CONFERENCE OPENS IN SAVANNAH

Savannah, Ga., November 21.—(Special.)—Georgia annual conference A. M. E. church convened here today. Bishop J. S. Fippen presiding. W. O. P. Sherman Jr., J. W. Welch and W. Lyons were elected secretaries. Six other preachers were assigned to duties as marshals and reporters.

Twenty-three applicants from various districts who asked to join the conference were sent before a committee of presiding elders J. A. Lindsay, West Savannah district; W. O. R. Sherman, Savannah district; A. Parker, Waycross district; B. J. Ross, Blacksburg district; S. W. Wood, Brunswick district, reported partially for their territories.

The feature of the day was the address of Bishop Fippen who said that the seven conferences just closed showed that 10,380 members of the church had migrated to different parts of the country.

"But our financial condition has not come short so much as might have been expected," he said. "Our educational work is in fair condition. We will be compelled to levy $1,000 each on presiding elders' districts to be used in district conferences and Sunday School conventions. The Preachers' Aid society is to be commended for the enlargement of its roll."

The bishop and his wife, Treasurer L. H. Smith, of denominational schools, and Presiding Elder S. F. Andrews spoke to the students of Central Park Normal and Industrial Institute. President J. Coleman Lawrence presided over the meeting at the school. The singing of the students was a feature.

There was no session of the conference after 2 o'clock, but the work of committees and the students of Central Park Normal and Industrial Institute. President J. Coleman Lawrence presided over the meeting at the school. The singing of the students was a feature.

COOK SENTENCED TO 14-YEAR TERM

The Petroleum Producers' association, Judge Killits asserted.

His general denunciation was made while thanking the jury for nearly six weeks of tireless service. "You have done what I expected you to do," the court said, "when this 'farious scheme began to unfold in the evidence."

Witnesses of eleven of the defendants were in the court room. There was little demonstration from the women as the verdicts were returned.

Dr. Cook sat motionless, his eyes on a figure in the carpet on the floor. Cox sat with head up, muscles in his face twitching and when the clerk was through, he jumped up, hurried to the water cooler, gulped a glass of water and sat down.

U. S. WILL STAMP OUT MAIL FRAUD SCHEMES

Washington, November 21.—The government is in a position, as a result of the conviction of Dr. Frederick A. Cook and others in Fort Worth today, to stamp out the threatened epidemic of mail fraud and widespread stock promotion schemes, Assistant Attorney General Clegg declared.

tought upon his return from a conference with United States attorneys at Fort Worth.

Mr. Clegg asserted that active prosecution of the mail fraud cases at Fort Worth, now numbering more than 400, will be a policy of the government. He predicted numerous pleas of guilty in those cases, adding that the department of justice and the postoffice department acting jointly had developed a machine for the prosecution of the cases that contemplates the release of none.

MUST KEEP MACHINE OILED

"It will be recalled," Mr. Clegg said, "that there was an epidemic of mail-road rebating during the Roosevelt administration. The government got behind the prosecution of them and finished that evil. The same evil is threatened in the use of the mails in fraudulent promotion schemes and I hope to see the same treatment accorded them that was given the rebating railroads."

Mr. Clegg said, however, that any disturbance of the machinery set for prosecuting the cases might result in making it ineffective. But if it remains intact and is allowed to go forward, he added, the whole docket should be cleaned up and the promotion of fake schemes through the mails definitely curbed.

The senate's skirts shall be free of any imputation of ulterior motives."

Capital Stock Issue

The amendment, passed by the house, providing for a tax of $100 on each $1,000,000 additional capital stock of corporations in the state above $2,000,000 was adopted by the senate committee. No objection to the amendment was offered. The tax on corporations with a capital stock of $2,000,000 is $800.

An amendment relieving motor buses operating between cities from local taxation, but requiring them to pay state taxes, was adopted by the committee.

Changes in the provisions by the house increasing taxes on manufacturers of soft drink syrups and insurance companies were not reached Wednesday. The committee heard a number of protests from representative business and carry managers, and from insurance agents, at a public meeting Tuesday afternoon.

After hearing a protest against the $25 tax on Pullman cars in the state, voiced by Albert Howell, Atlanta lawyer, the committee voted to repeal this provision. Mr. Howell stated that under the act as passed by the house railroad companies would be compelled to pay an unjust tax on Pullman cars making up trains plying between Georgia points and cities in other states.

Session of Senate

At its regular session Wednesday morning, the senate by a vote of 13 to 10 removed from the table where it had been placed Tuesday the Land-Miller bill providing for a new system of collecting state taxes, and Nature gave our famous Humble crude marvelous lubricating oil qualities, but to prepare it still further before refining, we store it at our tank farm, so that it goes to our stills clear and clean of sand, sediment and other raw impurities.

Not a mere synthetic "blend" or "compound" Nyfte oil from lightest, most free flowing to the heaviest and most viscous is taken from the crude in straight cuts. The qualities nature gave, have not been torn down and rebuilt, but merely separated for specific uses.

If free carbon and other injurious properties are not completely eliminated by scientific refining treatment, your motor will perform that task, but in doing so it may be injured or ruined. Nyfte oil is practically carbon-free. No fouled plugs--no carboned cylinders and valves.

When Nyfte oil is ready for use it is already practically pure, retaining but a trace of impurities affecting only the "color." The final process, of intensive filtration, leaves it clear and sparkling, utterly pure in color and in fact.

British Elections Present Baldwin-Lloyd George Duel

BY CHARLES M. McCANN.
London, November 21.—Britain's general election campaign, in many respects the most spectacular for many years, appears to be developing into a sharp personal duel between Premier Baldwin and David Lloyd George, who is fighting with a vengeance to recapture his old power in British politics.

Lloyd George, opening his campaign for the liberal party, ridiculed Baldwin's conservative government as impotent and futile. Baldwin retorted that Lloyd George had been overthrown because he had lost the confidence of the British people and told the ex-premier that his present tactics were not calculated to regain that confidence.

And now both men are well under way. Their campaigns promise to take the form of bitter attacks against each other's policies.

Lloyd George, speaking Wednesday in London, took up the battle where Baldwin had left it. Attacking the conservative platform of tariff protection, the Welshman declared: "Baldwin is endeavoring to smash a system under which for 80 years England's wealth, power and prosperity have been built up. Never was so inadequate a case made for a revolution so startling."

Later Lloyd George lapsed into the word pictures so dear to him when he remarked that "some people when they are in trouble take to alcohol—others take to tariffs."

Free trade, he said, had enabled England during the war to lend 2,000 million pounds to tariff countries, which, despite their tariffs today, claim that they are unable to pay back the loans. He declared that free trade had given England the best credit, the best wages, the greatest export business and the greatest shipping prosperity.

"To change from that policy would be lunacy," he added. "Baldwin advises a change for the purpose of keeping the home fires burning. That is like a drunken man breaking up the furniture and flinging it in the fire."

Premier Baldwin, meantime, was scheduled for a speech Wednesday night at Reading, England, was waiting eagerly for him to renew the verbal combat with his adversary from Wales.

And now both men are well under way. Their campaigns promise to take the form of bitter attacks against each other's policies.

Lloyd George, speaking Wednesday in London, took up the battle where Baldwin had left it. Attacking the conservative platform of tariff protection, the Welshman declared: "Baldwin is endeavoring to smash a system under which for 80 years England's wealth, power and prosperity have been built up. Never was so inadequate a case made for a revolution so startling."

Confessed Brother Slayer To Be Put on Trial Today

John Alton Rogers, Mrs. Love S. Rogers, for love of whom John is charged with killing Love S. Rogers, return of Mrs. Rogers to Douglas, Ga., jail after flight. They are handcuffed together.

Douglas, Ga., November 21.—(Special.)—John Alton Rogers and the wife of his brother, Love Rogers, with whose murder they are charged, will be placed on trial here Tuesday in the Coffee county court. A plea of mental derangement may be entered in the case of Rogers, it is understood. He was shot-slain by his brother, Rogers, who was shot-slain by his brother, Rogers, who was shot-slain by his brother, Rogers.

Rogers and the woman were arrested in Avon Park, Fla., several days ago. The woman was reported to have issued a statement that her husband was slain by John Rogers, who acted in self-defense. However, a later confession was made by Rogers, who told Sheriff Tanner that he slew Love because he coveted Love's wife.

Details Revealed.
In the confession, Rogers is said to have related the details of the crime. He claimed, in the confession, that during the time he spent with Love and his family an attachment between Mrs. Rogers and himself sprang up, culminating in the plan to run away to Florida. This intention was abandoned, however, and Rogers planned, contemplating the killing of the husband.

On the night of the killing, the confession continues, Rogers and the woman, who had been away from the residence, returned to find the husband asleep. It was suggested, said the confession, that this was an opportunity to commit the crime. The two went together to the field and dug a grave, the statement asserts, re-sufficient evidence that the present method was satisfactory.

McCulloch, of Truist, also favored retention of the ad valorem system, with the suggestion that the tax might be used to raise whatever revenue was lacking under the present method.

For Lankford Bill.
Pope, of Walker, favored the Lankford measure, with certain amendments. He said that the charge had been made that the Georgia general assembly should move to amend the bill to its sessions in a mile state, and he called upon the house to pass an intelligent, constructive tax measure which would refute this charge.

Representative Rowe, of Richmond, spoke in favor of his classification measure, and took occasion to ask every speaker if he did it. He did not approve of the classification plan, receiving widely varying answers. Representative Bennett, of Douglas county, in an effort to speed up the work of the house, a resolution adopted calling for convening morning sessions one hour earlier. Beginning Wednesday, therefore, the house will begin its day's deliberations at 9 instead of 10 o'clock.

Wednesday afternoon, rising to a point of personal privilege, Representative Bennett, of Douglas county, stated that he desired to refute certain charges being made in private conversation in the house to the effect that the investigation of the state department of agriculture made during the summer recess, cost the state more than $17,000. Mr. Bennett was a member of the investigating committee and produced figures to show that the total cost was only $2,275. He got his figures, he stated, from the office of the state treasurer.

Fertilizer Tax Reduction.
At a meeting of the house committee on general agriculture number two held Wednesday afternoon, the DeLaperriere bill, to reduce the fertilizer tax from thirty to fifteen cents per ton, was adversely reported by a vote of 21 to 17. Later, however, Representative Pope, of Walker, discovered that he was not a member of the committee and rose on the floor of the house to explain that he had understood the committee was general judiciary number two, of which he is a member. The vote therefore stood, after deducting his, 20 to 17 against the bill.

It was stated, that minority report on the bill probably would be made in the morning.

be desired, which will at least be a start along the road to much needed revision in the state's system.
While there are, here and there, some members of the house who still talk pessimistically of the impossibility of achieving anything tangible at this time, nevertheless the majority opinion of the house seems to be that the great bulk of the members are determined not to return to their homes without some definite record of achievement to which they can point.

The house Wednesday withdrew a resolution of sympathy adopted Wednesday, extended to Representative Bussey, of Crisp, on the reported death of his mother, on Sunday night, in Cordelle. Representative McMichael, of Marion, author of the resolution, announced that he had received a telephone call on Monday night stating that Mr. Bussey's mother was dead. Since then, the report had been corrected. Mrs. Bussey is dangerously ill. The death report error was made in Cordelle, it is said.

Thrash Indicted By Grand Jurors In Kelly Slaying

Dawson, Ga., November 21.—(Special.)—Trial of Enoch Thrash during this trial court was forecast tonight following his indictment today by the Terrell county grand jury, which charged him with the murder of Judge J. H. Kelly, who was shot to death by Thrash Wednesday.

Judge Kelly was killed as he met Thrash on the road and the two engaged in an altercation over the alleged removal from Judge Kelly's place of a negro.

Thrash claims he shot in self defense, while it is understood that the chief witness to go before the grand jury stated that while Judge Kelly stepped from his buggy with pistol in hand and ordered the negro to stop he made no advance upon Thrash.

Thrash fired three shots into Judge Kelly, the judge falling dead.
Judge Kelly, who was 70 years old, leaves a wife and several grown children. The funeral was held at the family residence, near Herod, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and interment in the Herod cemetery.

The case is expected to appear for trial some time this week.

Be Friends With Public Aylesworth Tells Utilities

Tampa, Fla., November 21.—Friedliness with the public, both the actual and ultimate consumer, is an absolute necessity in the progress of public utility organizations and a more determined effort to build up such a spirit is needed if service companies are to keep pace with public demands, according to M. H. Aylesworth, managing director of the national electric light association, speaking before the annual convention of the southeastern division here today.

Mr. Aylesworth's address touched the keynote of a general movement among utilities companies that they must be actual and definite factors in community and development enterprise. Though Mr. Aylesworth's address was one of the outstanding features of the convention which opened here Monday, bringing together 600 delegates from six states. Several other speakers were heard Wednesday, among them being H. M. Atkinson, of Atlanta, chairman of the board of the Georgia Railway & Power company, who spoke on the "Super Power System," linking five states.

"Customer Ownership of Securities," was the subject of a paper by William Hodge, of Chicago. He declared that there are two million owners of electric light and power securities and that they are increasing now at the rate of 300,000 annually.

George F. Oxley of the headquarters staff of the organization spoke on the subject of advertising and its value to the industry.

The convention will come to a close Thursday with R. Hudson Burr, of Tallahassee, chairman of the Florida railroad commission, as the principal speaker.

CRIPPLED TECH SQUAD PREPARES FOR AUBURN GAME

Fleetwood and Godwin Running at Guard Jobs In Signal Maneuvering

BY JOHN STATION.

After touching low tide in the game with Kentucky last Saturday, the Georgia Tech team is now fighting upstream for the game with Auburn on Thanksgiving Day. The team was all shot to pieces last Saturday on account of numerous injuries.

Some of the cripples are getting back into form, while one, possibly two, seem doomed to be out of it on the twenty-ninth. Felton McConnell is still in a pretty bad way, and it will be a surprise if he is able to put on a uniform Thursday week. If he plays, the probability is that he will not be able to stand the gaff for the full sixty minutes.

Felton has been in the hospital for the last six days. He got out Saturday morning, but was too weak to put on a uniform. He watched the game from the sidelines and then returned to the hospital. Yesterday he got out again and headed for school, but he was too weak to assume the regular routine, and they carried him back again. He is in for three or four days this time, and Felton braced the static nerve in practice one day last week, and this has been the source of all his trouble.

Dip and Penny Better.

Hunt and Farnsworth were out yesterday in uniform, and though they were in no condition to run signals or do more than hobble about, yet their presence on the field was very encouraging. Joe Lisy is out of the hospital now, and will be able to practice by the latter part of the week. No use to go on with the casualties. The roll call would be quite enough.

During the signal drill yesterday, Fleetwood and Godwin were running at the guard position. Fleetwood was running alongside Capt. McIntyre on the third team, and Godwin and Hall were the combination for the second varsity.

Godwin appears to be a guard to the manner born. He has the build and all physical characteristics which go into the making of a guard. Of low and stocky stature, he would offer an impassable resistance on the defense. His driving ability and strength would make him an offensive power.

In this day of football, the guard is called upon to do much of his team's interfering. Bednek, of Penn State, for instance, is considered the most vital cog in the State interference. Yet he plays guard. Wait's experience in the backfield would equip him ideally for the position of leading man in the interference.

With Fair still on the list of cripples and McConnell in the hospital, there is great possibility that Coach Ape will have to use either Fleetwood or Godwin at guard in the Thanksgiving game. It may be that he will be called upon to use them both, though it is hoped that the guard shortage will not become that acute.

Practically all of this week will be spent in perfecting a defense for Auburn. Auburn this year has shown a great variety of attack and it will be necessary to study intently the Auburn formations if Tech is to put up a suitable defense in the game. Auburn has shown a less than three separate and distinct formations, with a variety of plays from each formation. They have of course, the famous old "line divide," a stock formation of the Plainsmen for many years. Tech has played against the line divide for ten years, more or less, and knows pretty well what to expect from it.

But, in addition, Auburn has two brand new formations which are somewhat intricate and puzzling. One of these formations employs an unusually heavy shift which is liable to throw a defense off its guard. The other is somewhat like the formations employed by Georgetown, Penn State, Pittsburgh, and a host of others. Tech will have quite a nice job perfecting a defense for each of these formations, and the Yellow Jackets will have to work mighty hard before the week is out. It is unlikely that the first varsity will go into scrimmage before the game Thursday week. Coach Alexander said that he had too many men crippled to risk a scrimmage. If the first varsity does scrimmage, it will probably be on Saturday of this week or Monday of next.

All next week will be devoted to perfecting the Tech offense, and getting especially primed for Auburn. That will be some little task in itself. Briefly the plan is this: All this week prepare a defense. Next week perfect the offense. Thursday week go out and beat Auburn if possible.

Georgia To Play Yale Team Again

New Haven, Conn., November 21.—The 1924 football schedule of Yale university was announced here tonight. The only change from this year's list places Dartmouth in the place of Bucknell, scheduled the game for October 18. The meeting with Dartmouth will mark the first game between the two colleges since 1900. The agreement for the Yale-Dartmouth game next season is for one season only.

The game with Maryland is not definitely closed, but Yale has invited the Maryland team here again and is hopeful that the invitation will be accepted.

Following is the list of games and dates, all of which will be played in New Haven except the Princeton game:

North Carolina, October 4; Georgia, October 11; Dartmouth, October 18; Brown, October 25; Army, November 1; Maryland, November 8; Princeton, at Princeton, November 15, 1924.

HARVARD IN EXCELLENT SHAPE

Washington and Lee Team Faces Two Hard Contests

CONTRACT IS LET FOR PONCEY

College Authorities May Ask Former Ga. Tech Mentor for Resignation

Cambridge, Mass., November 21.—The Harvard football team Wednesday had its last full afternoon's practice before meeting Yale. Thursday the drill will be cut short at dark, the gates will be thrown wide open and the undergraduates and old grads will march on the field for their annual "hoorah" session. After the students and old grads have had their fun, the squad will be taken to the Belmont Springs Country club to rest until game time.

The get-behind-the-team drive really got started Wednesday night at a big mass meeting at the Harvard union, when Head Coach Fisher, Captain Hubbard and several Harvard players of other days spoke.

With the exception of the quarterback position the coaches have decided upon the line-up that will start the game. The quarterback honor rests between Joseph McGilone, a sophomore, and James Lee, a senior, who called signals against Yale last year.

Because of his greater experience, Lee is considered almost a certainty by those familiar enough with Harvard methods to anticipate the coaches' selection. How long he will direct the team depends upon how the game proceeds. McGilone, a better ball carrier than Lee, is likely to get his chance when the Crimson launches its final rushing attack.

Jack Hammond, it is declared, has been definitely chosen to replace Percy Jenkins in the starting line up, and will undoubtedly do the kicking in the early part of the game. Other positions will be occupied by the same players who took the field first against Princeton.

Tech Hi To Play In Birmingham

Tech High will hold a final workout this afternoon at Piedmont park before leaving Friday morning at 8 o'clock for Birmingham, where the Smithies will play the Central High school eleven Saturday morning.

Tech High will practice Friday afternoon at Riedwood field and Saturday morning at 10 o'clock the Smithies will meet the Central High eleven, one of the best prep teams in Alabama.

The two teams have met once before and that was in 1919 when the Central High eleven was victorious in a 14 to 13 game, played on Grant field.

Coach Tolbert is taking no chances in getting men hurt in the game and the list of players making the trip follows: The linemen are Leutenhauser, Rusk, Porter, McDavid, Goldsmith, Payne, McConnell, O'Rear, Edmon, Woodall, Holland and Watkins. The backfield men that will make the trip are Testard, Thomason, Van Houten, O'Neal, Randolph, Mayhew, Hubert, Passon, Rosenbott. Coaches Tolbert and Alexander will accompany the team.

Centre To Play 'Bama in 1924

Birmingham, Ala., November 21.—According to a statement made public today by S. L. Yerkes, an alumnus of Centre college, the Colonels of the Danville institution will meet the Crimson Tide of the University of Alabama in Birmingham on November 15, 1924.

Negotiations for the game which have been under way for some time were completed today when announcement was made that a contract for the game had been signed by both institutions.

This game will take the place of the annual Auburn-Centre game which has been played in Birmingham for the last two years, Mr. Yerkes said.

Lexington, Va., November 21.—The big problem confronting the Washington and Lee gridiron mentors just now is for training of two games during the same period. With Centre being met at Louisville this week-end and Carolina State scheduled for Norfolk Thanksgiving, the task of priming the squad for the two crucial struggles presents a big obstacle.

With only four short afternoons available for practice this week, and but two next week, it is not to be wondered that there is a pessimistic atmosphere over Wilson Field. Monday is ordinarily looked forward to as a holiday and period of recuperation, following a hard game, so soreness and bruises can be nursed and minor injuries treated. The last two weeks of the season of 1923 will see nothing in the nature of a "rest" period for the Generals, however, according to Coach Dellart. While he realizes as do all the members of the squad that they need a rest, the thing uppermost in their minds is the remainder of the schedule, and all will sacrifice personal likes to that end.

The quarterback position that will be taken up with defensive drills. The White and Blue has, on more than one occasion, demonstrated its ability to score points, while on the other hand on an equal number of occasions it has shown a decided lack of ability to prevent opponents from rolling up points. The locals are well acquainted with the tactics of Centre college, to this extent at least—they know the Colonels are liable at any time to unleash an attack that has hitherto been unheard of in football. To try to develop a standard defense for Centre's offense would be futile, so any defensive play on the part of the Generals must consist for the most part of every man keeping on his guard against a possible freak or trick. Not only must a defense be developed, but new defensive tactics must be mastered, and a thorough review of the fundamentals given.

The Centre contest, always regarded as one of the "high-lights" on the Washington and Lee schedule, is perhaps so this season more than ever before. Centre is known to have a powerful eleven, and with such luminaries as Hudgins, Covington, Kibala, Sparlock, Lemon, Gordy and a host of others, the Colonels possess everything necessary to a football machine. If the Generals can stop the Kentuckians, they will have scored perhaps the greatest victory of the season. As in past years Centre will enter the contest a heavy favorite, but Dellart has been carefully grooming his charges for this particular game for weeks, and it is believed by those in close touch with the situation that White and Blue will really "open up" more next Saturday than has been the case at any time this season.

Reports emanating from Louisville, the scene of the conflict, indicate that a record crowd will be on hand for the meet. Elaborate preparations have been made by the alumni of both institutions in and near Louisville to entertain the visiting eleven and November 24 seems destined to live in the memory of Kentucky fans as an epoch day in gridiron history.

Contracts for the concrete work, wiring, plumbing, etc., for the new stands which are to be erected at the Ponce de Leon ball park have been let by R. J. Spiller, owner of the property.

Griffin-Hodges company has been awarded the contract for the concrete work which will cost approximately $80,000, while the plumbing and wiring contract was awarded to the Pound company. This cost will total $40,000.

The contract for the structural steel will be let this morning and it has been estimated that this part of the work will cost around $55,000. The entire cost of the stands will cost approximately $180,000 when completed.

Work will be started this morning on clearing away the debris of the old stands which were burned last August and the actual work will start within a day or so.

Contracts call for the stands to be completed between March 15 and April 1. This will allow the Crackers to be able to train here next spring and have use of their own ball orchard before the season gets underway.

When the stands are completed it will be the most modern baseball plant in the south. The grandstands will seat 10,000 people, while the bleachers will have space for 4,000 people. One thousand of these seats will be for the negro fans and will be covered.

Already the heads at Washington have taken steps to try and salvage what they can from the wreck of their football team. Jim Marks, Kiski coach and a well-known alumnus, has been summoned from Salisbury, Pa., to assist Lane Coach Dave Morrow in rebuilding the varsity for the final game with the West Virginia Mountaineers at Morgantown, Thanksgiving day. Marks, it is expected, will go to Washington some time this week and will immediately set about rebuilding the team off-campus.

Was Bad Blow.

No defeat in years has stung the adherents of the Red and Black as did the one administered by the Panthers.

Pittsburg, Pa., November 21.—"We don't mind losing—there's a lot more to football than winning or being beaten," one man close to the inner circle at W. and J. declared yesterday, "but to go down without a single chance of striking back hurts."

"I have never seen a W. and J. eleven appear so helpless as the one that met Pitt. Defensively, the team did as well as could be asked, especially at the center of the line, but with four such men in the backfield to carry the ball as West, Amos, Reese and Basista, the results were pitiful."

From another source it was declared that "after what happened last Saturday there is no alternative for W. and J. to take but to ask Mr. Heisman to resign, for he has lost the confidence of the sound."

If matters come to a head and Coach Heisman, who came to the Presidency from the University of Pennsylvania and previously coached at Georgia Tech, is asked to resign and accedes, it will be the second time in a year that the Pitt-W. and J. encounter has paved the way for the downfall of a President coach. It was following the battle at Forbes field last fall that dissatisfaction with Coach Earl Neale first arose.

THEATERS : : MOVIES

Atlanta Theatre—Today, Friday and Saturday, "Just Married," with original cast.

Lyric Theatre—All week, the Forsyth Players in "The Mad Honeymoon."

Keith's Forsyth—(Keith Vanderville.) See advertising for program.

Loew's Grand—(Vanderville and pictures.) See advertising for program.

Howard Theatre—All week, Bobo Danie in "The Children's Corner," and other features.

Metropolitan Theatre—All week, Anna Q. Nilsson and James Kirkwood in "Ponjola," and other features.

Tucker Theatre—Today, All Star picture, "Luxury," and a Leather Pushers' comedy.

Alpha Theatre—Today, Lon Chaney in "The Shark," and a comedy.

Brice, Bigamy, theft, burglary, blackmail, and a dozen other crimes thrust on to spoil the course of true romance but everything comes out right in the end. It is funny for its farcical developments and thrilling in dramatic moment. Next week "Little Old New York" will be produced all week.

Loew Vaudeville.
(At Grand Theatre.)
"Sweethearts," a miniature musical comedy with a bevy of comely young girls and clever dancing men, perhaps the outstanding feature of a truly all-star bill of Loew's this week. The act is that of Carl Fletcher, and with its new songs and dances provides unusual entertainment.

Frank Ward, "The Hallucinationist," has a line of patter that is good for the blues any time.

Wesl, comedians of high ability, start right out making their audience laugh. Salle and Robles present a number of parodies on popular songs, while the Chandon Trio do an acrobatic turn.

Jackie Coogan in "Long Live the King."

Keith Vanderville.
(At the Forsyth.)
The words "fun" and Billy Hallen go hand in hand, it is proven by just a few moments' listening in on his very clever line of patter. Wherefore, Forsyth patrons are in for a laugh for the latter part of this week.

But for elaborateness of settings and an over-extravagance of melody, there is to be the act of "Miss Cupid." It is to be a miniature musical comedy of two scenes and one act.

Then, Fay Gordon and Franklyn Gates are to be seen in a bit of hilarity called "Minus Sense."

If it is dancing that's desired, the O'Mearas fill the demand in a whirlwind of modern variety steps. This team has appeared in some of the most successful musical comedies on Broadway.

The Tuscano Brothers are jugglers. A Pathe Newsworld and an installment of Acrop's Fables.

"His Children's Children."
(At the Howard.)
Arthur Train's sensational novel, "His Children's Children," now plays at the Howard, and it is one of the best of its kind, but a novel that created a buzz of criticism and approbation. The picture story has Bebe Daniels, George Fawcett, James Rennie, Halton Hamilton, Mary Eaton, Hale Hamilton and Dorothy Mackall in the featured roles. The picture is a Paramount production of the book.

The Foot Warmers Jazz orchestra stone the show at each performance. Smith Dollar in "Join the Circus" is the comedy.

"Ponjola."
(At Metropolitan.)
Donald Crisp, famous director, soldier of fortune and actor, who has spent the last three years in Europe, two years managing the Famous Players-Lasky London studio and one year at the Berlin plant of the same company, directed Sam E. Rork's First National production of "Ponjola."

An illustrious cast interprets "Ponjola," including James Kirkwood, Anna Q. Nilsson, Tully Marshall, John Kilgour, Ruth Clifford, Edwin Sturgis, Claire McDowell, Claire Du Ruy and Bernard Randolph.

"The Fighting Blade."
(Next week at Metropolitan.)
Next week Richard Barthelmess will be seen as the adoring lover. And once more he will have one of the prettiest girls that the screen has ever seen as the adoring lover. This time he plays the sentimental role with Dorothy Mackall, a former Ziegfeld follies girl, who has reached stellar heights in the year that she has been in motion pictures, and who is playing opposite him in the John S. Robertson production, "The Fighting Blade," at the Metropolitan next week.

Midnight Frolic.
(Coming Friday at 81 Theatre.)
The 81 Theatre will, on Friday night put on their third entertainment for white people only. Manager Bailey states every thing will be thoroughly cleaned and in excellent condition at the opening, 10:45 p. m.

The star of this performance will be Ida Cox, the colored star, who has made quite a name for herself in the song singing her "Graveyard Blues," "Chicago Blues" and others of her own composition. Ida is not only a singer on the stage but has a large following in talking machine records.

Besides Ida Cox you will hear the team of Hooten & Hooten, who is said to be the most comical couple regardless of color ever seen or heard on the stage in Atlanta. Their sermon on A. B. C.'s stops the show wherever they show.

The pair of Macks with their song and dance act is one of exceptional quality.

Tickets are on sale at Jacobs, 111 Peachtree street, and, Chess' Place at Five Points or at the theatre Friday night.

LAUSANNE TREATY
in Civilization"

The treaty of Lausanne was denounced as "the blackest page in civilization" and the last ten years, during which time Christian peoples have been massacred by the Turks, "the darkest years of history," by Bishop James G. Cannon, of Richmond, Va., in an address Wednesday morning before the North Georgia conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

"Everything the allied nations had promised suffering Armenians was broken at the Lausanne conference," he declared, and expressed the hope that America which had come to the aid of these people through the Near East Relief, would continue the work that has been started.

Bishop Cannon, who has just returned from the Near East, where he was sent to investigate conditions, and who was in Constantinople at the time of the Armenian massacre, told of the atrocities committed by the Turks, which he said had contributed "nothing to the world."

Bishop Cannon reviewed the incident at the Lausanne conference, when the Turkish delegates bolted at the sight of the Armenian delegates, which had come, he said, expecting to see the allies keep promises made to the Armenian people.

"Instead, a million and half Christian peoples were pitched from their homes and the Turks allowed to move into their places. It was a betrayal of Christian civilization," declared Bishop Cannon.

Bishop Cannon spoke of former President Wilson's move in the interest of the downtrodden people of the Near East. "We cannot alter the policy of our nation," he declared, "but we can make it more humane."

The work started by America through the Near East Relief organization, and written against the page of massacre, a page of mercy and help.

MOVIE VAMPIRES
LED HUBBY AFAR
ON SCARLET PATH

New York, November 21.—Max Kronrot was a good enough husband until about three years ago when he started going to see the vampires at the movies. But after a year or so of movie-going, the wild boyish streak in him caused him to kick over the traces and step out, at the age of 57. He hasn't been home since.

This was the story of his wife, Libby Kronrot, 63 years old, in her suit for divorce in the supreme court of Brooklyn.

Long after disappearance, Mrs. Kronrot said, she found her husband living with another woman.

Jane Hedden
Hat Pattern

Brightly colored butterflies are applied on the crown of a satin sailor. The medium sized brim is becoming to a great many women who can not wear a small hat or one with an upturned brim, because of glasses or width of face. The pattern includes the butterfly design directions for the applique. Compared to other kinds of handsome embroidery, the work goes quickly and is pleasant to do because of the beauty of effect. Taffeta or satin in any desired color may be used.

MATERIALS REQUIRED.
One-half yard willow or milliners' net, 1 soft crown, 1 yard 36-inch material, colored pieces for applique, 1 lining, 3 yards brace wire, embroidery thread.

This order will bring you pattern and working instructions for making hat illustrated above. Fill in name and address, inclose 25 cents in stamps, postal note or coin, address your order to Hat Pattern Department, The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Enclosed find 25 cents. Please send me Jane Hedden Hat Pattern and instructions No. 348.

Dashing Constitution Reporter Bears Bride Away in Sidecar

MR. AND MRS. LOY WARWICK.

By LOY A. WILHOIT.
Oh, young Lochinvar has come out of the west,
In all the wide border his steed was the best—
Loy Warwick, handsome and debonaire police reporter of The Constitution, has essayed the role of the modern Lochinvar—the dashing cavalier of 1923, and this story is to announce to his friends his marriage to Miss Catherine Jones, popular and beautiful Atlanta girl.

The wedding took place Monday afternoon in the offices of Judge E. D. Thomas, of the Fulton supreme court, news of whose tribunal Loy had covered prior to his assignment to police headquarters. The wedding was kept secret by the flustered young couple until Wednesday afternoon.

That tells the news, but the story of romanticism employed by the youthful couple in binding themselves in the ties of wedlock still remains to be recounted.

Copies Lochinvar.
Young Lochinvar, who galloped madly out of some state in the middle west and eloped with his bride on a white horse, was the pattern for Loy's course.

Hailing from Fort Valley at the time of his first connection with The Constitution, Loy, an humble apologist, where the peaches grow.

His steed—commonly described as "trustworthy" or "blond"—was not a horse, but a motorcycle with a sidecar, closely resembling a tin bath-tub.

After assuming himself that, so far as speed was concerned, his speed was the best, he stood fully equipped for "the dash for the blushing bride."

Miss Jones, who enjoys wide popularity in Atlanta, naturally attracted the eye of the Fort Valley youth in view of her remarkable resemblance to the peaches of his native section.

About the time she ceased to comment upon Loy's well-known resemblance to Rudolph Valentino, the friendship had ripened—another Fort Valley allusion, and a subtle one—to the point where Loy slyly loitered about the windows of furniture stores with visions of cypresses and rose vines.

Enter the Side Car.
The motorcycle settled it.

Monday afternoon the groom, left the post at police station, there he presides over news of suicides, murders, drunks, disorderly conducts and other interesting and attractive matters, and sped semi-silently away upon his side-appendage motorcycle.

The bride was soon seated in the little red tub, and away they went to their friend, Judge Thomas, who tied the knot with special firmness as evidence of his friendly interest in the young couple. In this connection, it might be stated that Loy is 19 and Mrs. Warwick 17, and this fact was brought to many of their friends' memories of the thrills of "Babe in the Wood."

If readers of this little story should comment upon the fact that Loy is a native of Georgia, and that Mrs. Warwick is offered them and they are respectively referred to the society department for additional details of the event.

The news of interest to this column is that Loy Warwick is married—probably for life—and that Miss Catherine Jones is his bride.

COALITION LOOMS IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Sioux Falls, S. D., November 21.—A move to bring together the democratic and farmer-labor party organizations in South Dakota was made today in at least two counties. While conversations on the possibility of aligning the two parties on a single national ticket have not yet reached the stage of formal negotiations, leaders in both ranks admit that the amalgamation effort may be successful if mutually acceptable planks on agricultural policy and transportation can be written into a unified platform.

Following the resolution of the Hughes county democratic proposal convention, urging coalition with the third party, democrats in Miner and Minnehaha counties met today with farmer-labor delegates informally to discuss the probabilities of a common meeting ground on national issues. Spokesmen for both groups were reluctant tonight as to just what progress had been made in the first discussions, but from one of the democratic participants it was learned that a conference of the two organizations for the state primary in March behind a ticket headed by former Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo still is a question in the minds of the McAdoo supporters, who as a result of yesterday's county proposal conventions, predict a quick nomination for McAdoo in the state convention.

McAdoo Second Choice.
From within the farmer-labor party the suggestion has come that McAdoo is an acceptable second choice to a considerable element of the third party in the event that Henry Ford cannot be given the democratic nomination at Pierre. This group, according to one of its amalgamation spokesmen, sees more hope of practical accomplishment with a progressive democratic slate than in a third party battle, which never has been successful in South Dakota since 1912. Lacking a Roosevelt to head their ticket, the farmer-labor group does not look forward with confidence to

Many U. D. C. Votes Pledged For Mrs. Frank Harrold Today

BY MRS. MCCORD ROBERTS.
Washington, D. C., November 21.—(Special).—With a voting strength of 400 votes, the largest of any state accorded by the credentials committee, Georgia delegates to the thirtieth annual convention of the general U. D. C. are confident that the honor of heading the U. D. C. will be won by Mrs. Frank Harrold, of Americus, on Thursday morning, when the nomination and election of officers takes place.

Mrs. Walter Lamar, of Macon, will make the nomination. And it will be seconded by the immense Georgia delegation present.

Votes for Mrs. Harrold.
Alabama will cast 136 votes for the Georgia candidate and Tennessee will vote 119. Virginia and North Carolina are expected to split their votes, these two states being next to Georgia in numbers. Oklahoma will cast all but four of its sixty-three votes for Mrs. Harrold, and several states having smaller voting strength will go for her. Florida and South Carolina are conceded to Mrs. Norris, of Florida, the second candidate for president-general and New York's vote will likely be cast the same way.

With a splendid record of growth under Mrs. Harrold's leadership, with a record of greater activity and larger membership than even Virginia and Texas, hitherto the strongest states in the U. D. C., the Georgia delegation will present their candidate on Thursday morning with fine prospects of success.

Glimpse of Wilson.
The most often expressed wish of delegates to the convention is for a glimpse of Woodrow Wilson and gratification of this is expected Thursday afternoon, at which time plans have been made for a sight-seeing tour in automobiles, the route to pass in front of Mr. Wilson's home, where, if the weather permits, Mr. Wilson will review the procession. This tour will include Arlington cemetery and the visitors will pause to do reverence to the grave of the Unknown Soldier. A brief ceremony at the grave, conducted by Bishop Freeman, of Washington, will mark this visit.

Historical evening will come on Thursday and Hon. Douglas S. Freeman will address the U. D. C. on "Jefferson Davis, the American." Music will be furnished by the navy band and old southern airs will be featured.

Reception at White House.
Mrs. Calvin Coolidge received the delegates at the white house on Wednesday afternoon, the entire lower floor of the white house being thrown open for inspection. Mrs. Coolidge proved a beautiful and gracious hostess and the impression made upon her guests was one worthy of the great position she occupies.

Following the visit to the white house an impressive memorial service was conducted in the convention hall by Rev. Livingston Rowe Schuyler, whose wife has been for the past four years the commanding officer of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and a leader and presiding officer of exceptional ability.

Roll call of states is the feature of the U. D. C. conventions which is unique and of special interest to the spectator. Occurring on Wednesday morning it was viewed by an overflowing crowd of delegates and spectators, fully 3,000 in number. As the roll is called each state responds with its state flag tendered the custodian of flags by the state president, and accompanied by some special demonstration, in most cases taking the form of singing.

Georgia delegates supported Mrs. Harrold by singing Robert Lovejoy's words on Georgia set to music by Lollie Belle Wylie. In the case of "Kentucky Home," sung by Kentucky representatives; "Old Black Joe," sung by Tennessee; "Suwanee River," by the Florida delegation, and "Dixie," lustily led by Louisianans, the entire convention joined.

A note of brilliant color is given by the dozens of young girls in white skirts and scarlet blouses who are the pages for the convention and many of whom have accompanied their state delegations. Georgia is represented by Miss Alice Stewart, of Atlanta, and Miss Sue Tanner, of Carrollton. The pages' hall will be the closing social event of the convention and will occur on Friday evening.

Miss "Betty Ann" is two feet high. She wants to come and live with you. The Constitution has 500 of these "dolls supreme," and any person may get in the game and win one without the expenditure of a single penny.

"Betty Ann's" regular retail price would be at least $10, and she is the finest American-made doll that The Constitution could procure under a special purchase. But money can't buy her. Every one of the 500 beauties is here for some industrious little girl who is willing to get out and win a doll of her own.

All you have to do is to get eight NEW subscriptions of 20 weeks each to The Daily and Sunday Constitution — and the whole family and all your neighborhood friends will be glad to help you win. "Betty Ann" Dolls are the most beautiful, durable, life-like dolls ever seen in Atlanta. Everything about them, from their dainty white lace bonnets and lovely hair, to their real patent-leather slippers and mercerized stockings, will delight you.

"Betty Ann" Dolls have real hair and the prettiest complexions imaginable. They are unbreakable and very beautiful. Their eyes are guaranteed never to fall out, no matter how much they wink or shut. You must meet her to know how really beautiful and wonderful she is.

"Betty Ann" not only goes to sleep nicely, closing both her eyes and wakes up calling "mama" as a real baby does, but she can also be made to wink and blink at the will of her little mother. This achievement is possible only by the patented construction of the eyes, which we were fortunate to get at a high cost, as we want to give our little friends all the pleasure that could possibly be gotten out of a dolly.

"Betty Ann" is stuffed all through, body and limbs, with pure, white, new cotton, which gives her that pleasant, soft, cuddly feeling which every little girl likes in her dolly, as it reminds her of her little sister or brother. We have taken great pains with our manufacturer to insure sanitation all through, workmanship and material.

"Betty Ann's" face can be washed with soap and water, her hair can be combed and brushed, and you can keep her beautiful and cheerful all the time.

"Betty Ann" calls her mama with such a human, child-like voice that you can fool anybody to believe that it is a real baby calling for her mother. She will make an ideal Christmas present. Five hundred of the dolls are in the warehouse now awaiting delivery to the lucky little mothers who win them. Act now before they are gone — get yours — they won't last long.

Fill in the entry list printed on this page and mail or bring it to The Constitution. You will then receive a subscription book to circulate among your friends and obtain the necessary eight NEW subscriptions to The Daily and Sunday Constitution.

Any NEW subscription in Atlanta and its suburbs and in any town or city where The Constitution has an established carrier service will count. (On rural routes and small towns without regular carrier service The Constitution has a special doll offer, particulars of which will be supplied upon request.)

By a NEW subscription is meant a subscription to a person who has not been a regular subscriber of The Constitution for the past 30 days. There is no money collection on your part—and "Betty Ann" will be delivered to you promptly and safely.

THE AZURE ROSE

BY REGINALD WRIGHT KAUFFMAN

Next Week: "THE WAY OUT."
By Emerson Hough.

He squared his jaw.
"A slave to your brother's will," he said.

"But this is nonsense!" He came forward. "This sort of thing may have been all very well in the fourteenth century, but we're living in the twentieth, and it doesn't go now. Oh—he flung out a hand—"I know all about your old laws and traditions! I dare say they're extremely quaint and all that, and I dare say there was a time when they had some reason in them; but that time isn't this time, and I refuse to hear any more about them. I won't let them interfere with me."

She flashed crimson.
"You speak for yourself, sir; permit me to speak for myself."
His answer was to seize her hands.

"Let me go!" she ordered.
"I'll never let you go," said he.
"Let me go. You are a brave man to restrain a woman! Shall I call a servant?"

She struggled fiercely, panting.
"I've got to make you understand me," he protested, holding fast her hands. "I didn't mean any harm to your traditions or your customs. Whatever you love I'll try to love, too—just so long as it doesn't hurt you. But this does hurt you. Tell me one thing: Why did you leave Paris? What was it made you change your mind?"

He saw in her face the signs of an effort to disregard the demand. "Tell me why you left Paris," he repeated.

Her eyes wavered. The lids fluttered.
"That night," she began in an uneven tone, "I gave you to understand, that night—"

"You gave me to understand that you loved me."
He said it fearlessly, and, on the edge of a sob, she fearfully answered him. She had ceased to struggle. Her hands lay still and cold in his.

"I told you that love had brought me a sword."
"You've changed. What has changed you?"

"I have not changed. I have only come back to the unchanging castle, to the ancient laws and customs of my people—their ancient and unalterable laws. I had to come back to them," she said, "because I realized that it was not in me to be false to all that my fathers have for centuries been true to."

Cartaret leaned forward. He could not believe that this was her only reason; he could not understand that the way of any custom can be so powerful. He held her hands tighter. His eyes searched her quivering eyes.

"Do you love me? That's all I want to know, and I'll attend to everything else. I've no time for anything else. I've got to know if you love me. I've got to know that right here and now." She shook her head.

"Don't!" she whispered.
"Do you love me?" he relentlessly persisted.
"To love in Paris is one thing; here I may not love."

"You may not—but do you?"
"Don't. Please don't. Oh!"—her red lips parted, her breath came fast—"it was all—"

"It is all!" he declared. He slipped both her cold hands into his right hand and put his freed arm about her waist. "Victoria," he whispered, drawing her to him, "it's all. It's that matter of all that counts. I can mock all custom and defy all law. I love you, Victoria. Slowly her eyes closed; slowly she leaned against his arm; slowly her head drooped backward, and slowly he bent toward its parted, unresisting lips—"And love's the one thing that's worth living and dying for."

At that word, she came to sudden life. With one wrench, she had darted from his arms. Instantly she had recovered self-control.

"No, no, no!" she cried. "Oh, go away! There is danger here. Go, go away!"

The suddenness of her action shattered his delirium. He read in her words only her reply to the question that he had put to her.

"Very well," he said, "if you think my love is worth so little. If you can't brave one miserable medieval superstition for it, then I've got the answer to what I asked you, and you're right: I'd better go." He turned to the narrow door at the head of the spiral stairs. "I know," he said, as if to the stone walls about them, "that I'm not worth much sacrifice; but my love has been worth a sacrifice. Some day you'll understand what my love might have meant. Some day, when you're old, you'll look from one of these windows out over these valleys and mountains and think of what could have happened—what there was once, just this one time, one chance for—" He half faced her. "Other men will love you, many of them. They'll love your happiness and grace and beauty as well. I dare say, as I do and always will. But you'll remember one man that loved your soul; you'll remember me."

Victoria was swaying dizzily. Her recaptured self-command visibly wavered. She leaned against the rough wall. He leaped toward her, but she had the strength left to warn him away.

"No, no, no!" she repeated. "I do not—" She raised her hands to the vaulted roof. By a tremendous effort she became again mistress of herself—and of him. "Why will you not understand? I do not love you. Go!"

At that moment a cry rang out. It was a cry from the gateway. It was the cry of Chitta, who came bounding into the narrow room and buried herself at her mistress's feet.

Before any one of the trio could speak, there was the clatter of a galloping horse on the road, the thunder of hoofs over the drawbridge above that faithful chamois.

heer that? I hate you! Now will you go?"
He looked at her, and his face hardened.
"He said."
He turned away.
"My brother!" gasped Victoria.
Don Ricardo came in at the door of the tower room.

CHAPTER VIII
For a moment none moved. There was Chitta, groveling on the stone floor of the circular room, her face hidden in her hands; there was Victoria, her arms outstretched, struck rigid in the act of repulsing Cartaret; and there were the two men—the American white, but determined and unafraid; the Basque with a dull red spreading on his tanned cheeks—facing each other as pugilists, entering the ring, face each other at pause during the fleeting instant before they begin to circle in an opening. Cartaret, with the eye that, in times of great emotion, takes account of even trivial details, noted how Don Ricardo, who had been forced to stoop in order to pass the doorway, gradually straightened himself with a slow, unconscious expansion of the muscles such as a tiger might employ.

Victoria was the first to speak; she lowered her arms and turned upon her brother a glance of which the pride proved that her self-possession was regained. She spoke in English, though whether for Cartaret's comprehension, or as an added gibe at Ricardo, the American was unable to determine.

"You came unannounced, brother," she said. "I am not accustomed to such entrances."
Don Ricardo, he said, adopting with visible repugnance, the language she employed. "And I am the head of your house. He bent his gray eyes on Cartaret. "Be so good as to come with me, sir," he said. He stood aside from the door. "I follow after my guest."

Cartaret went on to the court yard. There his host followed him.
"Will you come to my office?" he asked.

He walked across to the north wing of the castle and into a large room that looked upon the terrace. The ceiling was a mass of blackened rafters; the walls, wainscoted in oak, were hung in ancient arms and armor, with the antlers of deer and the staked heads of tusked boar, and with some rags of long faded tapestry. There was a yawning fireplace at one end, between high book shelves filled with leather-bound folios, and near one of the windows, stood an ornate seventeenth century desk massed with dusty papers.

Eskurola waved his guest to a stiff backed chair. Cartaret, seeing that Don Ricardo intended to remain standing, merely stood beside it, as to come with me, sir," he said. He stood aside from the door. "I follow after my guest."

Cartaret went on to the court yard. There his host followed him.

He walked across to the north wing of the castle and into a large room that looked upon the terrace. The ceiling was a mass of blackened rafters; the walls, wainscoted in oak, were hung in ancient arms and armor, with the antlers of deer and the staked heads of tusked boar, and with some rags of long faded tapestry. There was a yawning fireplace at one end, between high book shelves filled with leather-bound folios, and near one of the windows, stood an ornate seventeenth century desk massed with dusty papers.

Eskurola waved his guest to a stiff backed chair. Cartaret, seeing that Don Ricardo intended to remain standing, merely stood beside it, as to come with me, sir," he said. He stood aside from the door. "I follow after my guest."

Cartaret, however, was in no mood to hear any more exposition of Vasconga manners and customs. He had had enough of them.

"There's no need of that," he said. "If I've done anything, shouldn't have done, I'm sorry. But I want you to understand that I'm to blame; I'm to blame—and nobody else."

Eskurola went on as if Cartaret had not spoken.

"It is not our custom to present to our ladies such casual strangers as happen to ask shelter of us; nor is it the custom of our ladies to permit such presentations, still less to seek them. Of that last fact, I say but one word more: the Dona Dolores has been lately from home, and I fear that her contact with the outer world has temporarily dulled the edge of her native sensitiveness."

"All-right then. But you'd better be told a few facts, too. Paris isn't Alaya. I met the Dona Dolores in Paris. We were neighbors. What could be more natural, then, than that, when I came here—"

"Ah-hi!" Eskurola softly interrupted.

Victoria was swaying dizzily. Her recaptured self-command visibly wavered. She leaned against the rough wall. He leaped toward her, but she had the strength left to warn him away.

"No, no, no!" she repeated. "I do not—" She raised her hands to the vaulted roof. By a tremendous effort she became again mistress of herself—and of him. "Why will you not understand? I do not love you. Go!"

At that moment a cry rang out. It was a cry from the gateway. It was the cry of Chitta, who came bounding into the narrow room and buried herself at her mistress's feet.

Before any one of the trio could speak, there was the clatter of a galloping horse on the road, the thunder of hoofs over the drawbridge above that faithful chamois.

"Go!" shrieked Victoria. "Will you never go? Do you not understand what this means? Do you not know who is coming here?"

Chitta set up a loud wail.
"I don't care who's coming here," said Cartaret. "If there's any danger—"

Victoria leaped over the prostrate servant and began pushing Cartaret away.
"I hate you!" she cried. "Do you hate me?"

Can you beat that? One of my semi-salesmen sends a special-delivery letter giving me fifty-seven reasons why he can't get any orders. There must be no living creatures in his territory except bald eagles and Mexican hairless dogs.

Cartaret thought again of Victoria's parting word to him.
"I know it now," he said.
"You are my guest," Eskurola pursued. "I shall tell you something. You have seen me only as what must seem to you a strange and hard man—perhaps a fierce and cruel man. I am the head of my ancient house; on me there depends not only its honor, but also its continuance. Sir, I exact of my relatives no less than I have already exacted of myself."

The effect of this statement was twofold. At first a violent anger shook the Basque, and the veins stood out in ridges along his neck and at his temples, below the red cloth bound about his head. Then, as quickly, the anger passed and was succeeded by a look reminiscent, almost tender, of "You know that no alien can marry one of our people," he said. "You know that now."

Cartaret looked at him in amazement. Could it be possible that there had ever been in this medieval mind anything but ruthless pride of race? "Years ago—but not so many years ago as you, sir, might suppose—there came to this house a young lady. She came here as a governess for my sister, but she was a lady, a person of birth. Also, she spoke your language." He paused, and then went on in a still gentler voice. "Sir, because of her, your language, barbarous as it is, has always been dear to me, and yet, still because of her, I have ever since wanted not to speak it."

Cartaret looked at the floor. Even though this confession of a past weakness was voluntary, it seemed somehow unfair to watch, during it, the man whose pride was so strong. "And you sent her away?" he found himself asking.

"She went when her work was finished. Cartaret raised his eyes. There was no false assumption in the man upon whom they rested; it was impossible to believe that, seeing him thus a woman would not love him."

"I'll go," said Cartaret. Eskurola's words had assured him of Victoria's safety. "I'll go now."

"I would not drive you away. You have said that you would be my guest for another night; you may remain as long as you care to remain."

"I'll go," Cartaret repeated. "It isn't you that's driving me. Will you please send up to my room for my saddle bags, and have my mare brought around."

Don Ricardo bowed. He went out. Cartaret stood for some time on the spot where he had been standing, throughout the talk with his host. He was thinking of his ruined hopes and of the woman that had ruined them. Once he asked himself what had so changed her; but when he could find no answer to that question, he asked what the cause could matter, since the effect was so apparent. He walked to a window. He could see that part of the terrace which lay between the gate and the drawbridge, but he saw no sign of the mare. What could Eskurola be doing? He seemed.

Whatever it was, to be a long time about it.

The oaken door of the room opened and closed with a bang. Don Ricardo stood before it. The dull red had returned to his cheeks.

"Sir," said he, "I have just been having another word with the Dona Dolores; she informs me that you have had the impertinence to tell her that you love her."

Cartaret laughed bitterly. "In my country," he said, "when a man wants to marry a woman it is customary to say something of that kind."

"You are in Alaya, sir, and you speak of a member of my family."

"I was in Paris then—just now?" Eskurola came a step forward.

"I won't talk any more about it," said Cartaret. "Please have my mare brought around at once."

"No," Eskurola replied; "you shall talk no more about it. Mr. Cartaret, you must fight me."

The American could not believe his ears. He recollected that when the Continental speaks of fighting he does not refer to mere pugilism.

"You're crazy," said Cartaret. "I don't want to fight you."

"So soon as you have passed that gate, you will be my guest no longer. What, sir, you may then want will not matter. You will have to fight me."

Cartaret sat down. He crossed his arms. "Is this your little way of persuading me to stay awhile?" he asked.

"You cannot go too soon to please me."

"Then perhaps you'll be good enough to tell me what it's all about." Eskurola's giant figure bent forward. His eyes blazed down in Cartaret's face.
